Koch Proposes $325M Budget

Includes $5.2M More For QPS; Hire Two New Police Officers Social Worker, Civil Engineer

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch on Monday unveiled his proposed $325 million general fund budget for the fiscal year starting July 1, an increase of $14.3 million over the current budget.

The 4.6 percent increase in the budget includes an additional $5.2 million for Quincy Public Schools, plus funds to hire two new police officers, a social worker for the Council on Aging and a civil engineer in the Engineering Department. The budget also funds two positions – earth scientist and tree warden – added but not funded earlier this year in the newly formed Department of Natural Resources.

Roadwork Set For 109 Streets

By SCOTT JACKSON

The start of spring marked the start of a busy season for roadwork in Quincy, with projects planned for 109 streets across the city.

The projects will include the replacement of water mains, re-lining of sewer mains, paving, microsealing and sidewalk repairs. The work began in April and will continue through the fall, with final paving on some projects taking place next spring.

City officials and representatives from the engineering firms designing the projects hosted a series of community meetings on the roadwork starting in April and continuing through last week.

At the community meeting for Ward 5 residents, held May 1 at Central Middle School, Joseph Shea, an engineer with the firm Woodard & Curran, provided an overview of the work set to take place. The 50 or so residents on hand then had the chance to break out into smaller groups to discuss the projects taking place on their streets. Residents were also provided with contact information for the contractor performing the work and the engineering firm or city staff that designed the project.

The roadwork is part of a five-year initiative to improve Quincy's streets and sidewalks as well as the city-owned infrastructure beneath them.

"The city has a five-year rolling program," Shea said. "The City Council approved a rolling five-year roadway bond and a rolling five-year water main bond, such that

Amended Downtown Master Plan OK'd

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday night approved the latest iteration of the Urban Revitalization and Development Plan for Quincy Center, which identifies 13 properties, mainly along Hancock Street, for potential taking in the future.

Mayor Thomas Koch submitted the latest version of the URDP, which would be the fifth amendment to the document since it was originally approved in 2007, to the council for approval in March. The state Department of Housing and Community Development must sign off on the amended document before it comes into effect.

The new amendment identifies 13 properties in Quincy Center for potential acquisition by the city. Those properties are: 1355-1363 Hancock St.; 1415 Hancock St.; 1433 Hancock St.; 1445 Hancock St.; 1455 Hancock St.; 1459 Hancock St.; 1469 Hancock St.; 1495

we're going to do this all next year and the year after."

The City Council in 2018 approved Mayor Thomas Koch's request for a $17 million bond for the reconstruction and repair of streets, an $8.5 million bond for the replacement and repair of water mains, and $14.25 million in financing for water system improvements through a Massachusetts Water Resources Authority program that offers interest-free, ten-year loans for eligible projects. Additional funding for the projects, Shea said, will come from Chapter 90 money from the state and the city's sewer and drain rehabilitation fund, which developers pay into when they construct new buildings in the city.

The city is coordinating its infrastructure work with National Grid, which owns the gas mains under city streets, to ensure the utility company completes its planned work before the streets are paved, Shea said. National Grid's months-long lockout of the company's gas workers meant some road projects scheduled for last year had to wait until this year.

"Because of their labor dispute…they're about eight months behind schedule. Some of you may have been told you were getting a new roadway last year – National Grid didn't fix the gas main, so we didn't pave the roadway," Shea said.

Water mains will be replaced on Fairmount Way, Lawton Road, Monroe Road, Phillips Street and Vassall Street in Ward 5. Other streets in the city where water mains will be replaced include Belmont Street, Butler Road, Freeman Street, Hughes Street, Quarry Street, Taylor Street, Tyler Street, Vane Street and Winthrop Avenue.

A temporary water main will be placed along the street and connected to each house; temporary fire hydrants are also installed as part of the process. The contractors will use gravel to create ramps between driveways and the road to protect water mains.

Once the new water mains are installed, the trench is allowed to settle over the course of the winter. The roads would then be resurfaced starting next spring.

Merrymount Parkway, Morse Street, Newcomb Street, and Watkins Street in Ward 5 will have sewers repaired. Sewer repairs will

Quincy Public School Enrollment Continues To Grow

By TOM GORMAN

Although the Quincy Public School student population continues to increase, officials are working to provide the space needed to accommodate a growing school system.

During the May 1 school committee meeting, Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro gave an overview of the district's "challenges and opportunities" - a detailed look at enrollment numbers and options for classroom space and programs.

"We're looking at site enrollment, shifts, trends, and class sizes," said DeCristofaro. "We also look at enrollment and space and program considerations."

Over the past decade, the school system has added more than 500 students.

"This is a significant increase," said DeCristofaro.

In the 2009-10 school year, there were 9,169 students. This year, there are 9,706.

The student population is up 53 students this year from last year.

"Not a significant increase over the past year," DeCristofaro said.

The elementary schools have increased by nearly 300 students in the past 10 years and has increased by 22 students this year over last year.

The middle school level is up by just under 200 more students over the past decade. In the past year, there are seven additional students.

The high schools actually went down by 70 students in the past 10 years, but, is up by 29 this year from last year.

Breaking it down over the past year, kindergarten to grade one saw a decrease of 28 students; grade five to six went by 12; and grade eight to nine gained 45 students.

From the 2009-10 school year to 2013-14, there was a yearly increase – from a total of 9,169 to 9,470. The population dropped the next two years by over 100, and increased again the next two years - from the 2016-17 year to this year, adding about 200 students.

Kindergarten enrollment has been up and down over the past decade. In 2009-10, it was 726 and went to a high of 808 in 2013-14. It went down the following year and has been a roller coaster the subsequent five years – this year at 761.

Beechwood and Clifford Marshall Elementary schools saw a decrease of 25 students this year from last year while both Montclair and Merrymount went up 18 and 24 respectively. Parker gained 17 this year and Atherton Hough went up by 16. Lincoln-Hancock decreased by12. Snug Harbor, Squantum and Wollaston each only gained a few students.

At the middle school level, all five schools experienced an increase in student population over the past 10 years. In the past year, Atlantic gained 36 students and Point Webster increased by seven. Both Central and Broad Meadows decreased by16 students.

DeCristofaro noted that Broad Meadows has special education classes that boosted its enrollment. He said Atlantic has room to accommodate the additional students to keep class sizes down.

North Quincy High School had an increase of

HIGH SOCIETY

From the beginning, cuff links have projected an image of wealth and power. An interesting tale regarding cuff links involves the Count of Monte Cristo. In that book, a wealthy character sported enormous diamonds on his shirt cuffs, which were the talk of the town. Tailors took notice and started to seriously promote shirts requiring cuff links to signify prestige and influence. Jewelers stepped forward and kicked the production of decorative jeweled cuff links into high speed. Today, cuff link wearers can be found displaying every possible design including snarling lions with ruby eyes, steampunk gears in silver placed under rock crystal, diamond-studded hippos, gold beer mugs with amber foam, and even their favorite race horse!

We are very much aware of today's trends in fine jewelry, and we'll be happy to keep you up to date on what is new and exciting. Our designs range from chic, up-to-the-minute designs to the well-loved traditions of the past. And if you are considering a custom design, now is an excellent time to bring us your ideas so we can begin working on something special just for you. Classic General Stores Topic At Library May 14

Local historian and popular WCVB Channel 5 Boston television reporter Ted Reinstein will talk about the subject of his third book, "New England's General Stores: Exploring an American Classic" at the Thomas Crane Public Library on Tuesday, May 14 at 7 p.m.

Written with his wife, former ABC journalist Anne-Marie Dorning, the book looks at how the humble general store helped shape New England, and how today, in the era of the big box store, it continues to be a focal point and a gathering place for towns all across the region. The general store is enjoying a resurgence and is even being reinvented and reimagined.

The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library. The Friends' Annual Meeting will be conducted prior to this program, starting at 6:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

House Approves $42.7B Budget

The Massachusetts House of Representatives last week voted 154-1 to pass a $42.7 billion budget for Fiscal Year 2020.

The vote came after four days of debate and deliberation on more than 1,300 amendments that had been filed to the original budget recommendation made by the House Ways and Means Committee. In total, the FY20 budget sees a three percent increase over funding levels from the previous year, with MassHealth and local aid to cities and towns making up the two largest expenditures.

Quincy's House delegation – Majority Leader Ron Mariano, and state Reps. Tackey Chan, Bruce Ayers, and Dan Hunt – successfully advocated for more than $50.5 million for the City of Quincy in FY20; this includes $28.6 million in Chapter 70 education funding for Quincy Public Schools and $20.27 million of unrestricted general assistance to the City of Quincy, a 4.3 percent and a 2.75 percent increase, respectively, from last year.

In addition to education and general assistance, Quincy received funding for several human service agencies. $100,000 is committed to Manet Community Health Center to begin development of a new urgent care facility at the North Quincy Health Center. Two Quincy-based community multi-service agencies were also funded, with $150,000 for Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. and $50,000 for Germantown Neighborhood Center. Both of these agencies provide important direct services to the community, particularly youth, low-income, immigrant and low-English speaking populations.

The House delegation also secured funding for a number of important local public safety programs. Quincy Fire Department's Hazmat Program received $50,000; Quincy Housing Authority received $75,000 to complete the second phase of security upgrades in senior housing facilities; and the State Police received $95,000 for dedicated seasonal overtime patrols of Wollaston Beach and Furnace Brook Parkway.

"I am pleased that the House was once again able to pass a responsible and fiscally sound budget for the coming year," Mariano said. "My colleagues worked together to ensure that we continued our commitment to education by making a significant increase to Chapter 70 funding for our schools, as well major investments in housing, substance use services, and health care.

"I am proud of the renewed commitment we made to homelessness funding, including over $53 million for homeless individual shelters, as well as an increase in the supplemental rates for nursing homes across the Commonwealth to help an important industry that is in crisis," Mariano continued.

"At home in Quincy Point, I am excited about securing another $75,000 for improvements to the Fore River Clubhouse. Together with the money secured last year, and recent CPA funding assigned by the city, I look forward to working together with (Ward 2) Councillor (Brad) Croall and Mayor (Thomas) Koch to see that the Clubhouse once again becomes the neighborhood gem it should be for the next generation," Mariano added.

Pursuant to the metropolitan beaches commission's recommendations, of which Quincy is a participant, $900,000 is committed to seasonal support and regular infrastructure improvements for beaches in the Greater Boston metropolitan area. $75,000 is dedicated to interior improvements at Fore River Clubhouse. The delegation also successfully advocated for $100,000 for pier improvements at Squantum Point Park, as part of ongoing upgrades to make ferry service more accessible. It was a priority for the delegation to continue to support these local projects and services that enhance Quincy residents' lives and are accessible for all our families and neighbors to enjoy.

"I am proud that we were able to deliver significant funds to a number of important projects throughout Quincy and prioritize statewide issues that impact all of us, while crafting a balanced and responsible budget for Fiscal Year 2020," Chan said. "Working together as a delegation, we are a strong voice ensuring that our city's needs continue to be recognized and addressed."

Notable in the FY2020 budget is an increased focus on education funding, with the House budget including a $236 million increase in Chapter 70 funding over Fiscal Year 2019. The budget also continues the House's commitment to ensuring children have access to high-quality early education and care, by increasing rates for early education providers by $20 million and supporting continuing education opportunities at community colleges. Housing and homelessness funding also saw major increases, with $110 million for the Massachusetts Rental Voucher Program; $72 million for Public Housing Subsidies, $7.2 million for Alternative Housing Voucher Program; and $53.4 million for Homeless individual shelters.

Following on increases last year, the House once again prioritized mental health and substance abuse treatment and mitigation, funding the Bureau of Substance Addiction Services at $143.9 million which will help create five new recovery centers across Massachusetts. In addition, for the first time since 1994, the National Guard's national conference will be held in Massachusetts in 2020 and $125,000 has been allocated to assist with its preparations.

With the upcoming 2020 U.S. Census, the House budget also included significant investments in local outreach efforts, with $2.75 million allocated for technical assistance and an additional $2 million funding the Complete Count Grant Program. Complete Count will support outreach efforts, particularly among minority and immigrant communities that are at risk of being undercounted, in cities and towns across Massachusetts to ensure an accurate count of all residents in the 2020 Census.

"Once again the Quincy delegation has worked together to secure important items in the state budget process for the city," Ayers said. "I'm proud to have sponsored three successful amendments that bring funds to the city and to my district specifically, including $95,000 to increase state police patrols on Wollaston Beach during summer season, providing for the safety of residents and motorists; $100,000 to assist Manet Community Health Center in North Quincy to begin expansion to offer Urgent Care; and $100,000 to further assist the implementation of a ferry service at Marina Bay.

I'm also pleased to have co-sponsored amendments with my colleagues that secured funds for Quincy Asian Resources, the Quincy Housing Authority, the Quincy Fire Department's Hazmat program, and others, along with a substantial increase in local and educational aid," Ayers added.

"I am proud to have worked with the delegation and our colleagues in the House to produce a fiscally responsible budget, focusing on core investments in local aid and housing, protecting the environment, strengthening education and supporting healthcare," Hunt said. "I look forward to continuing these efforts for growth and positive investments in our neighborhoods and communities across the Commonwealth."

The Fiscal Year 2020 budget will be debated in the State Senate in late May.

Mental Health Awareness Month, An Introduction To Art Therapy At Library

Celebrate Mental Health Awareness month all May with the exhibit on the Thomas Crane Public Library's middle floor, "Creative Soles." Each piece started with a shoe and expresses something about how the artist views mental health.

The exhibit is co-sponsored by the Aspire Health Alliance (formerly known as South Shore Mental Health).

In collaboration with Aspire Health Alliance the library will present a program celebrating the role art can play in mental health therapy. On Monday evening, May 13 at 6 p.m. the Quincy community is invited to join artists whose work will be on display on the middle floor all month for an engaging program that will include a short dramatic piece, accolades for the artists, and more.

Refreshments will also be provided.

"Art brings with it diverse possibilities for mental health or other health care. We can't limit ourselves to interventions that fit into boxes of certain sizes or shapes. Let's open ourselves to what art brings to our own health and the ways we can share art with others for the sake of their health as well," said Anthony Sheehan, President/CEO of South Shore Mental Health

Come to the library on Wednesday, May 15 at 7 p.m. and learn about the role art can play in therapy. The program will be presented by Boston School worker Danielle Fischbach an Expressive Arts Therapist who has worked with Aspire Health Alliance (formerly known as South Shore Mental Health) and the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

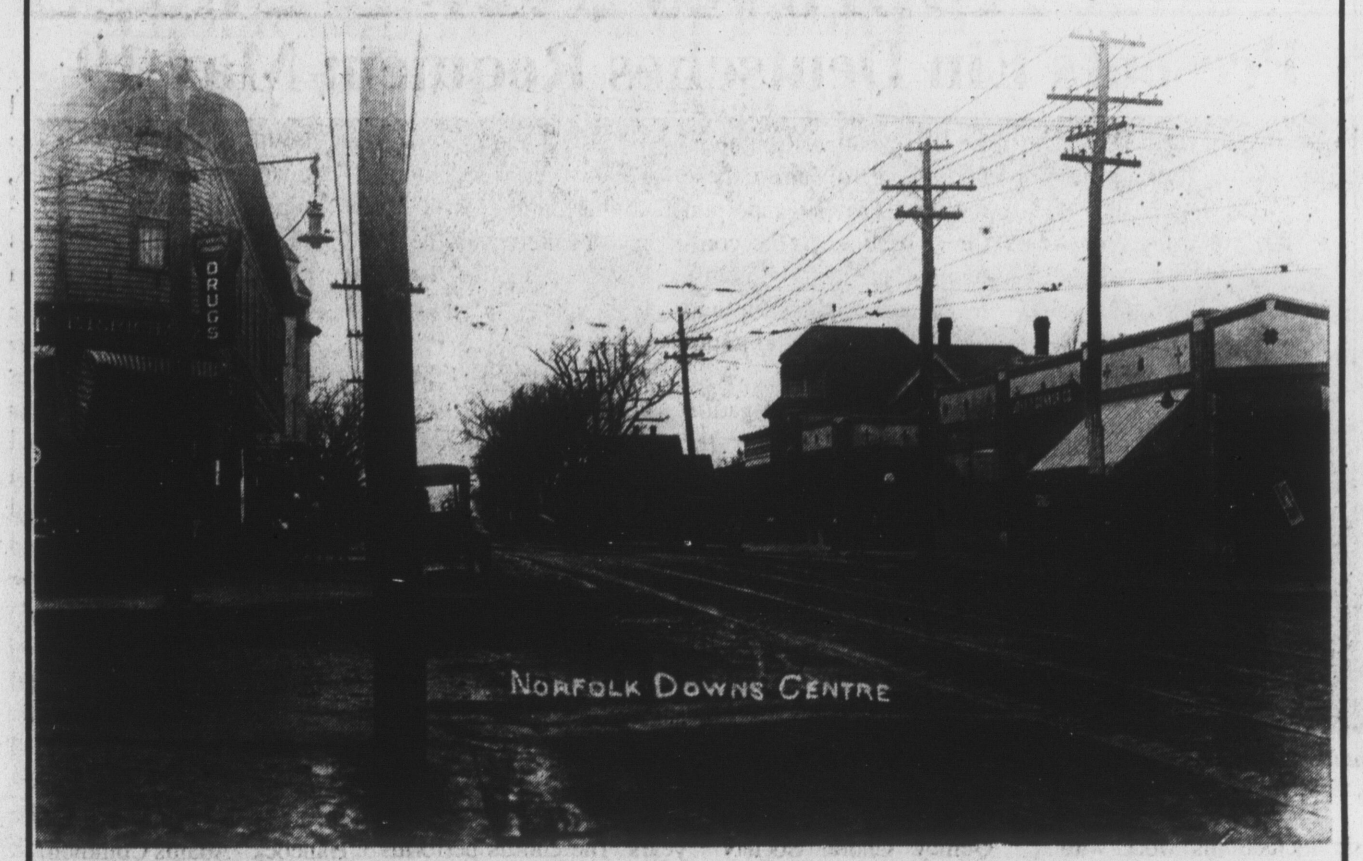
Scenes From Yesterday



THIS IS A c.1920 real photo postcard view of Hancock Street looking north in Norfolk Downs; Billings Road crosses in the foreground. The store on the left was a drugstore owned by Forrest Richardson. At the time, there were over 20 independently owned drug stores in Quincy. Over the next 10 years that number doubled. On the opposite corner Albion MacKay had his newspaper store and next to it was one of seven grocery stores operated in Quincy by the John T. Connor Co. The old gasoline pump with the glass ball on top was in front of the Norfolk Downs Garage where Harold Fratus sold Paige automobiles. The large house beyond the stores was moved to make room for the Sacred Heart Church and later served as the church's rectory.

also take place in the vicinity of Avalon Beach and on Botolph Street and Colby Street, among others.

For those sewer repairs, workers will pull a new lining through the existing sewer line and then heat it up to seal it into place, Shea said.

Open cut sewer replacements are scheduled for Clement Terrace, Peterson Road, Island Avenue and Barham Avenue to Elmwood Park.

The portion of Hancock Street from Billings Road to Fenno Street will be leveled and microsealed, as will School Street between Hancock Street and Franklin Street. Microsealing does not involve a full-depth reconstruction of the roadway. The process was used on the stretch of Washington Street between Washington Court and McGrath Highway last summer.

Streets set for repaving and sidewalk improvements include Kidder Street, Garfield Street, Grenwold Road, Perry Road, Princess Eve Drive, Roberta Lane, Sims Road and Willow Street in Ward 5. Elsewhere in the city, portions or the entirety of Arthur Street, Ashworth Road, Exeter Street, Narragansett Road, North Central Avenue, Plymouth Avenue, Reservoir Road, Roberts Street, Ruggles Street, Samoset Avenue, Sea Street, South Street, Standish Road and Station Street are among those slated for repaving and sidewalk repairs.

Shea said the city would attempt to save street trees during the road and sidewalk work but trees whose root systems are causing sidewalks to bulge or are threatening underground utilities would have to removed. The city has money set aside to plant new trees, he added.

Bellotti To Receive Gavin 'Man Of The Year' Award

Quincy College President Michael Bellotti will be named Man of the Year by Gavin Foundation at the Creative Office Pavilion Road to Recovery Gala Thursday, May 9, from 6 to 9 p.m. at the The Innovation and Design Building, One Design Center Place, Boston.

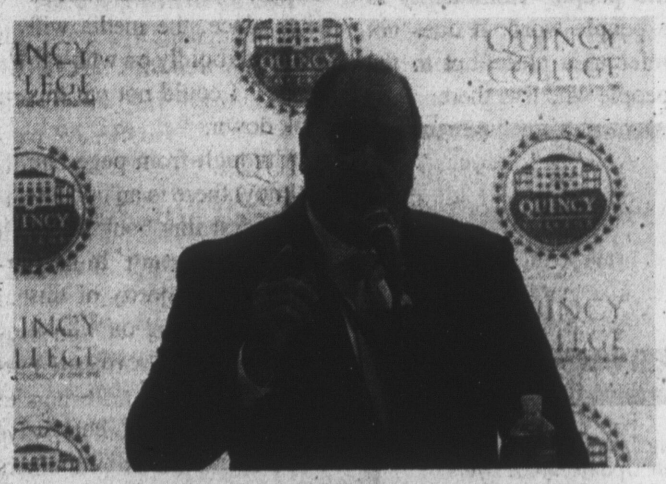
Bellotti will be honored as the Gavin Foundation Man of the Year for his ongoing commitment to comprehensive and impactful substance abuse community programs. Bellotti has served the public for nearly 30 years, most recently as the sheriff of Norfolk County. His community programs have been hailed by educators, parents, and law enforcement for their positive impact on South Shore communities.

As Norfolk County sheriff, Bellotti supported the Speakers for Hope, The HOPE (Heroin, Opioid, Prevention and Education) program and in collaboration with Quincy Drug Court, residential recovery services for men re-entering the community.

Past Gavin Foundation Award Winners include Commonwealth of Massachusetts Gov. Charlie Baker (2017) and Jeff Werner, New England Carpenters Fund (2018).

"I am humbled and honored to receive the Man of the Year Award for 2019 from the Gavin Foundation, whose work continues to benefit over 5,000 individuals each year from Massachusetts and beyond. Congratulations to fellow 2019 honoree, Brian Hannon," Bellotti said.

As president of Quincy College, Bellotti fosters community connection, both on campus and off campus. A guest speaker at the Quincy College Substance Use Disorder Forum in 2018, Bellotti continues to support lifelong learning and community access to educational opportunities including pre-licensing and licensing education for social workers and substance abuse counselors, via the Quincy College Substance Use Disorder Certificate Program.



QUINCY COLLEGE PRESIDENT Michael Bellotti

The Gavin Foundation's Road to Recovery Benefit Gala is an annual fundraising gala for the Gavin Foundation. The Gavin Foundation is a nonprofit agency providing comprehensive adult, youth and community substance abuse education, and prevention and treatment programs. Established in South Boston in 1963, they serve over 5,000 individuals each year from Massachusetts and beyond.

The evening includes a silent and live auction, delicious food stations, and two special 2019 honorees.

Brian Hannon will also be recognized at the Road to Recovery Benefit Gala. Hannon will be presented with the Caring Hearts Award for his enthusiastic support and dedication to the recovery community.

GD Denies Shift To Rhode Island

A spokesman for General Dynamics squelched rumors that the company is planning to move its Quincy operations to the old Quonset Point Naval Air Station, which was recently decommissioned in Rhode Island.

General Dynamics Chairman David S. Lewis told the annual meeting that the company has been working with the state of Rhode Island to lease portions of the base "for use as a production support facility" for the Electric Boat Division in Groton, Conn.

"It has absolutely nothing to do with us," said a spokesman for the Quincy Division.

Meanwhile, the strike of production workers at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard moved into its eighth week. Mayor Walter J. Hannon notified the company that only one Quincy police officer per shift will be assigned to the shipyard for the duration of the strike.

COOPERATIVE FIGHTS RISING FOOD COSTS

While the price of food continues to skyrocket in 1974, there is an organization in Quincy, which provides much needed relief to the consumer.

Formed in the spring of 1973, the Quincy Community Food Corp will celebrate its first year of operation this summer and the venture has proven quite successful thus far.

Operating out of the Southwest Community Center in West Quincy, the Cooperative comprises an average of 35 households per week and is always seeking new members. The membership fee is $1 per household and regardless of income or geographical location the Coop is open to everyone.

4 FIREFIGHTERS HONORED

Four Quincy firefighters were honored at the 88th annual Fireman's Ball for their acts of heroism. They are Richard Salvaggio, Richard Cooke, Anthony Innello and John Demaggio.

They were cited for their rescue of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hagen of 122 Piermont St., who were overcome with smoke shortly after 2 a.m. on June 10, 1973 when fire swept their home.

Quincy Choral Society Presents Ein Deutsches Requiem May 19

QUINCY CHORAL SOCIETY, under the direction of Joshua Rohde, will present Ein deutsches Requiem, Op 45, by Johannes Brahms, Sunday, May 19 at 4 p.m. at St. Mary pof the Hills Church, 29 St. Mary's Rd., Milton. Photo Courtesy Quincy Choral Society

At St. Mary Of The Hills

Under the direction of Joshua Rohde, Quincy Choral Society will present Ein deutsches Requiem, Op 45, by Johannes Brahms, Sunday, May 19 at 4 p.m. at St. Mary of the Hills Church, 29 St. Mary's Rd., Milton.

The church is handicap accessible. Tickets are $20 and will be available at the door.

This performance features a version arranged by Brahms for piano in four hands. Instead of setting the traditional Latin requiem text, Brahms chose his own Biblical texts to create a personal requiem to comfort those who mourn.

The soloists for the requiem are Elizabeth Swanson, soprano, and Craig Juricka, baritone, with Virginia Grimes and Stephan Griffin, pianists. Also included in the program is Brahms' motet "Warum ist das Licht gegeben den Mühseligen," Op 74 No 1.

Joshua Rohde was appointed music director of Quincy Choral Society in September 2016. Dr. Rohde is director of Choral Activities at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, where he conducts all four of the university's choral ensembles – Men's Glee Club, Women's Alden Voices, Festival Chorus, and the Vocal Performance Lab.

Dr. Rohde's work encompasses multiple music genres, including new music by living composers. His dissertation was on living Scottish composer Sir James MacMillan. Notable world premieres of new music include his work with several Pulitzer Prize winning composers. As a soloist, he has played cello concerti, performing works by Elgar, Haydn, Boccherini, and Shostakovich, and he regularly works as a continuo cellist playing the choral-orchestral works of Bach.

Quincy Choral Society was founded in 1981 for the purpose of bringing musical excellence to the South Shore and the world. In December 2015, the Quincy City Council recognized Quincy Choral Society for bringing music and joy to the City of Quincy for 35 years. The chorus performs locally and has performed in music festivals in Washington, D.C., in Europe, at Carnegie Hall as part of the Masterworks Series, and most recently in Montreal and Quebec. In September 2018, the Chorus participated in the dedication of the Hancock - Adams Common. Quincy Choral Society is a 501(c)(3) organization, and donations are tax deductible to the extent allowed by law.

'The Fine Print' Book Review:

'A Good Neighborhood' By Therese Anne Fowler

By BETH VACCA

A good neighborhood. It's part of the American dream. Where we aspire to live. Raise kids. Have book clubs. Feel safe. But what makes a good neighborhood? Good neighbors.

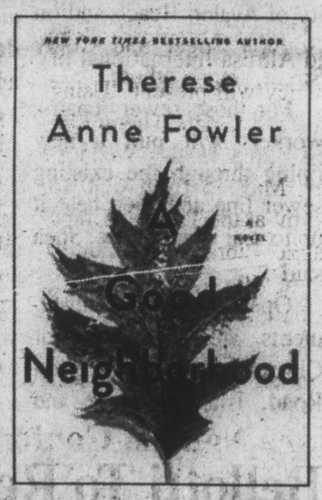
It's the people. You may think it is the pretty oak tree out back or the well manicured lawn. You may admire the size of the homes or the expensive marble countertops. But it's always the people. Community is a people word. It does not refer to a place but to the people who live there.

In the novel, "A Good Neighborhood," by Therese Anne Fowler, we are told a story, a tragedy, set in "a simple old neighborhood." The narration of our story is written in a collective voice. In essence, it is the neighborhood itself that is telling this story. How could you not be instantly intrigued? And if the ingenious viewpoint of the narrator wasn't enough the story opens by informing us "Later this summer when the funeral takes place, the media will speculate boldly on who's to blame." I could not put this book down.

Although from page one we know there is an upcoming funeral this book is not a murder mystery. In fact, I spent the majority of this book speculating on who it was that would eventually die.

As the cast of characters are introduced we are shown how each character is initially seen by the neighborhood. We are then allowed glimpses into their true characters. Fowler then takes it a step further and we are given the background information which helps us to understand the how and whys of how the character ended up where they were. "As with extenuating circumstances, context matters when it comes to understanding how and why our fellow human beings behave in the ways they do. Humans, as we all know, are complicated creatures. Even the simplest of us isn't simple. We are, every one of us, shaped by who raises us and where we're raised and how."

Fowler tackles issues regarding class, race, gender and justice in such a way that you cannot help but pause and search your own soul. What went into the making of me? Was I "the awkward kid, the mean kid, the violent kid, the shy kid, the popular, the celebrated .. " Do I display only the parts of me that I "hope others will approve of .... The parts others will like"?



"The stories we as a culture love the best almost always have a villian." And this one does. There are those among us that believe they are above others. Whether it be for the color of their skin, the size of their bank account or the influential people they count as their friends. People can be full of greed, lust and hate when the masks come off.

Sometimes we read these stories of villains, both real and fictional, as a comparison. To tell ourselves we are not as bad. Hopefully, if we are honest enough to admit we see a little bit of ourselves in the acts or decisions of someone else, we are brave enough to make a change. For "it's in the telling of a tragedy that we sow the seeds - we hope - of prevention for future sorrows."

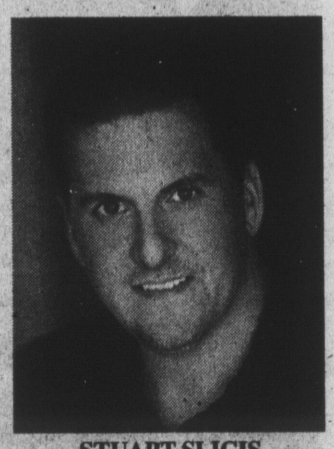
Stuart Slicis City Of Presidents Scholarship To Benefit Future Quincy High Class Presidents

Memorial Fundraising Party Saturday

A new scholarship will benefit future Quincy High School class presidents while honoring the memory of a beloved former QHS student leader.

Stuart Slicis passed away on April 12 in Austin, Texas after a brave battle with cancer. Slicis, 48, was the student body president for the Quincy High School Class of 1988 for all four years of high school.



STUART SLICIS

To honor his memory, Slicis's high school classmates have created The Stuart Slicis City of Presidents Scholarship.

The scholarship will be donated to college-bound Quincy High School class presidents. The committee's initial goal is to raise $5,000 and then donate $1,000 to each of the next five QHS class presidents. If the group raises more, it will donate the additional funds to Quincy High School student leaders.

"Stuart was a larger-than-life personality who was loved by so many, who enjoyed many great accomplishments in life and who displayed leadership qualities even as a very young man," said Tracey Thornhill Doherty, Slicis's lifelong friend, Quincy High School classmate and leader of the scholarship committee.

"Among those accomplishments, Stuart is fondly remembered by his Quincy High classmates as our class president throughout our entire time in high school. We hope that supporting future Quincy High School class leaders is one little way we can honor the memory of our great friend," said Doherty.

The scholarship committee, friends and classmates host a memorial fundraising party in Slicis's honor on Saturday, May 11 at Cronin's Publick House, 23 DesMoines Rd. in Quincy Point, starting at 6 p.m. The celebration is open to the public.

Friends and supporters can also donate through the Stuart Slicis City of Presidents Scholarship page on GoFundMe.com.

The scholarship committee includes Slicis's Quincy High School classmates Doherty, Kerry Byrne, Christine Cedrone, Lynn Crossman, Julie Coste Kraunelis, Lisa Perfetuo Miller and Christine Menz Toler.

MCC Concert May 26 Celebrates Paul Robeson

"Paul Robeson: The Giant in a Nutshell" is an award-winning portrait of the famous actor, singer, and civil rights activist, written and performed by Tayo Aluko.

Milton Community Concerts presents this powerful musical drama/lecture on Sunday, May 26th at 3 p.m. at First Parish of Milton, 535 Canton Ave., in its final concert of the season.

The remarkable Paul Robeson is brought vividly to life on this rollercoaster journey which covers his pioneering and heroic political activism, his music (featuring "Ol' Man River" and other famous songs), much fiery oratory, and a defiant testimony to the House Un-American Activities Committee, led by Senator Joseph McCarthy. Mr. Robeson was a celebrated American bass-baritone in concert halls, on stage, and in film, and was also an important figure in the civil rights movement of the mid-20th century.

Tayo Aluko has received extraordinary acclaim in his portrayal of Paul Robeson in his play "Calling Mr. Robeson" on stages across the UK, USA, Canada, New Zealand, Australia, and Jamaica. In February of 2012 he received a standing ovation at Carnegie Hall, and in 2013 his play was staged in London's West End. He won the "Outstanding Theatre Award" at the Brighton Fringe in 2016, "Best Musical Performance" at the Atlantic Fringe in Nova Scotia in 2013, and "Best Solo Show" at the Stratford-Upon-Avon Fringe in 2013. Critics commented: "A thrilling, moving, and marvelously entertaining musical drama", "A must-see experience, a treasure of a show", and "Simply told, but immensely powerful". During this month Aluko is presenting the story of Paul Robeson in Glasgow, Scotland, Vancouver, BC, and Milton. He recently appeared at the dedication of Paul Robeson Plaza at Rutgers University in New Jersey, followed by a performance at the Paul Robeson Community School for the Arts.

Tara Nguyen Conference Participant

Displays of research and creativity dominated the Eastern Connecticut State University campus at the recent "Celebrating Research Excellence and Artistic Talent at Eastern (CREATE) conference.

Among the conference participants was Tara Nguyen '21 of Quincy who majors in sociology. Nguyen presented "Communities Unite: An Autoethnography of the Resistance to Gentrification in Chinatown, Boston."

The day-long showcase featured more than 250 students from all majors who led oral and poster presentations, panel discussions, music and dance performances, art and photography exhibitions, new-media demonstrations and more.

Research questions probed the effects of "fake news" on the economy, the influence of climate change on Northeastern coastlines, the use of virtual reality gaming compared to traditional exercise, and much more. Artistic attractions included a dance "informance" in homage to African migration, operatic duets, a gallery of student artwork and more.

Ayers Honored As Labor Council's Legislator Of Year

State Rep. Bruce Ayers (D – Quincy) was recently recognized as "Legislator of the Year" by the Norfolk County Central Labor Council.

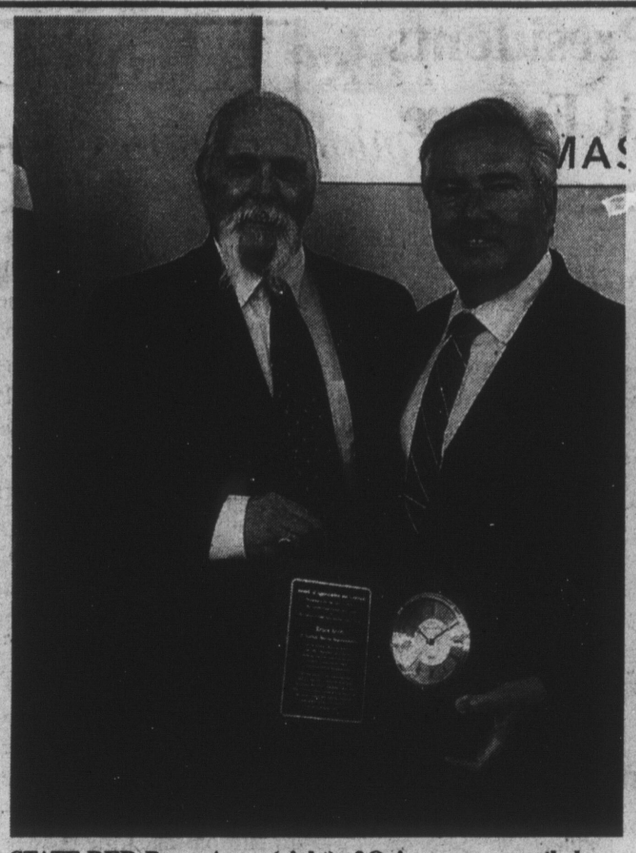
"I'm honored to receive this award from my friends in labor," Ayers said. "Whether it's as a small business owner, a city councillor, or a state representative, I have always been proud of my record supporting working men and women."

The Norfolk County Central Labor Council represents well over 40,000 union members in 26 cities and towns, ranging as far north as Quincy and Weymouth down to Plainville and Foxboro. Its Board of Directors is led by President Bob Rizzi of the Bricklayers & Allied Craftsmen Local 3 union, and includes representatives from Pipefitters Local 537, Utility Workers 369, Sheet Metal Workers Local 17, IBEW 103, Plumbers & Gasfitters Local 12, and others.

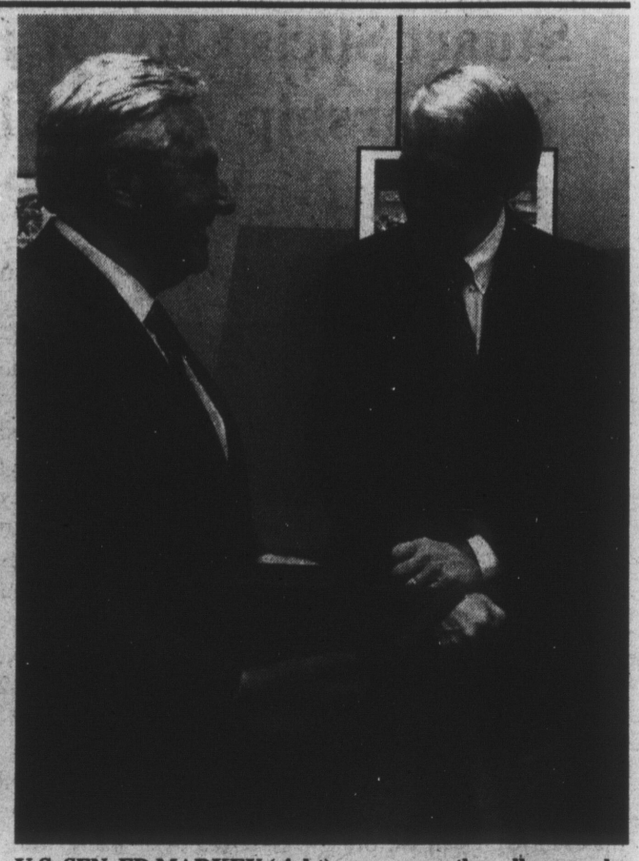
"The Norfolk Labor Council represents hard workers across the spectrum of organized labor, ranging from building trades and firefighters to nurses and human service workers. I'm grateful for their partnership and will continue to work with them to support the rights and the dignity of workers," Ayers said. He also noted his pride at maintaining a 98 percent approval rating on Labor's legislative scorecard, among the highest in the House.

Ayers was presented with his award by Norfolk Labor Council President Bob Rizzi at the annual Labor Council Breakfast. Other speakers offering praise for Ayers included AFL-CIO President Steve Tolman; Cong. Stephen Lynch; Cong. Bill Keating; and U.S. Sen. Ed Markey.

"Bruce Ayers has long been a force in Quincy and Randolph politics, and has always fought for the rights of our union brothers and sisters," Sen. Markey said.



STATE REP. Bruce Ayers (right) of Quincy was recently honored as the Norfolk County Central Labor Council's "Legislator of the Year." Presenting the award is Norfolk Labor Council President Bob Rizzi.



U.S. SEN. ED MARKEY (right) was among the collegues who congratulated state Rep. Bruce Ayers (left) for being named "Legislator of the Year' by the Norfolk County Central Labor Council.

"Bruce's years of advocacy for working families in his district and across Massachusetts have helped advance the cause of labor and provide a better quality of life for all residents in our Commonwealth."

WHAT'S COOKING

Marie & Susie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUSIE FALCO

Coconut Macaroons

By MARIE

Today's recipe has only four ingredients- five if you count the dash of salt. The results are a chewy, delicious cookie that you will be sure to enjoy with a cup of tea or coffee.

Preheat oven to 325 degrees; lightly grease a cookie sheet

RECIPE:

2 egg whites
A dash of salt
½ teaspoon of vanilla
1 ½ cups unsweetened coconut
2/3 cup of sugar

Beat the egg whites, dash of salt and vanilla together until peaks form.

Gradually add the sugar, beating until stiff.

Fold in coconut and mix until well blended.

Drop by spoonfuls onto a greased cookie sheet.

Bake in oven at 325 degrees for about 20 minutes.

Cookies should be light brown on top.

Cool before removing from cookie sheet.

Black Bean Burgers

By SUSIE

These burgers are simple and delicious.

Black beans are loaded with protein, fiber, and important nutrients to keep you healthy, and these burgers also will keep you from getting hungry due to the nice and slow way the beans digest in the body.

Adding the onions, carrots, garlic and all the spices boost the nutrition even more, as well as the fiber. Try them!

I love these with avocados and Siracha sauce. The coconut or Bragg's Aminos are in place of soy sauce due to a lower sodium content, overall health benefits, and lack of wheat, but you can use soy sauce if you prefer!

BLACK BEAN BURGERS

2 cans rinsed and drained black beans, and mashed well.
1 small onion, chopped fine
3 garlic cloves, minced
2 carrots, shredded
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 tsp cumin, ½ tsp chili powder, ¼ tsp cayenne pepper
Sea salt and pepper
1 tablespoon coconut aminos or Bragg's Liquid Aminos
½ cup quick cooking oats

Simply mix all ingredients together well and form into patties. Place on sheet and freeze for 30 minutes.

Remove from freezer and simply fry on both sides until nice and crisp and cooked through.

Serve with all the fixings!

QHS Fashion Show Thursday

The Quincy High School Fashion Show will take place Thursday, May 9th at 7 p.m. in the Lloyd Hill auditorium at Quincy High School.

This year's fashion show will feature the work of over 70 Fashion students, including original mini-collections from an outstanding class of Fashion Majors, with hair and make-up by students from TONI&GUY Hairdressing Academy.

New this year is an expanded show including "dinner, performance and reserved seating." Dinner, show, and reserved seating tickets are $20 and must be purchased by Friday, May 3rd, by calling 617-984-8731.

A buffet style dinner will be prepared by QHS culinary students and served in the President's Café beginning at 5 p.m.

This year's fashion students were given the opportunity to aspire to new creative heights, so there will be fashions for everyone; from day wear, to evening wear, men's wear as well as Eco-Friendly designs made from recycled and reclaimed materials.

QHS Fashion Majors have appeared on fashion TV competitions and go on to premier fashion schools around the country.

General admission (show only) tickets are $6 if purchased in advanced and $8 at the door. Tickets are available at the QHS Main Office (cash only).

Yo-Yo Dieting Can Take A Toll On Your Health

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

RUTH JONES

By RUTH JONES MSPH, BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

A large proportion of people make a great effort to maintain their ideal weight, but repeatedly losing and regaining pounds, also referred to as yo-yo dieting, are probably doing their bodies more harm than good. Yo-yo dieting, also termed weight cycling, has been thought to lead to long-term struggles with weight and a higher risk of obesity.

Numerous studies have attempted to validate these concerns. Researchers recently evaluated 31 studies on weight cycling and its connection to obesity and diabetes. Findings revealed the following:

• A total of 19 studies examined the effects of weight cycling on metabolic risk factors for obesity. Of these, more than half, 58%, found an association between weight cycling and increased weight and body fat, particularly belly fat, subsequently increasing the threat of obesity.

• Eight studies examined the impact of weight cycling on weight gain and obesity risk. Three studies reported that weight cycling appears to increase the probability of future weight gain.

• Of the studies that examined the risk of type 2 diabetes, the majority, 76%, determined that weight cycling did not increase blood sugar levels or increase risk of type 2 diabetes.

Consequently, the researchers concluded that there's inadequate evidence to support a connection between yo-yo dieting and increased risk of obesity.

However, a new study found that women who lost at least 10 pounds, but subsequently gained that weight back within a year, were more likely to possess risk factors for heart disease. Findings indicated that the more times a person utilized a yo-yo diet, correlated with poorer heart health. Yo-yo dieting also wasn't useful in assisting women to maintain their weight in a healthy range. The study found that yo-yo dieters were 82 % less likely to be at an ideal weight.

Researchers at Columbia University Medical Center in New York City noted that weight cycling is extremely commonplace with the span being zero to 20 cycles and a that history of one or more episodes of weight cycling was associated with a poorer health score.

The study encompassed almost 500 women in the New York City area. Their average age was 37, with almost two-thirds of the participants from racial or ethnic minorities. The average body mass index (BMI) of women in the study was 26, indicating they were slightly overweight. BMI is an approximation of a person's body fat based on height and weight measurements. A normal BMI is between 18.5 and 24.9, according to the U.S. National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute. Overweight is between 25 and 29.9, and over 30 is considered to be in the obese range. Almost three-quarters of these women reported yo-yo dieting at least once.

The researchers examined the women's heart health utilizing the American Heart Association's "Life Simple 7" recommendations. These consist of seven factors that are considered to be a measure of how successfully people control their heart disease risk factors. The seven measures incorporate eating healthy, exercising regularly, losing weight, smoking cessation, and managing blood pressure, cholesterol and blood glucose levels. The study found Women who had ever yo-yo dieted were 51% less likely to have a modest total score. They were additionally 65 % less likely to have a score that ranked as optimal. Additionally, the more often a woman had dieted and rapidly regained the weight, the worse her score was. Women who had never been pregnant seemed to be more impacted by the effects of yo-yo dieting, and these women were most likely younger, demonstrating the link between early onset of yo-yo dieting and increased cardiovascular risks. Although this study didn't prove a cause-and-effect relationship, researchers observed that when you lose weight, you are inclined to lose lean muscle, and when you regain it, it's frequently fat, more often fat that settles in the abdomen, which is associated with a higher risk of heart disease.

Samantha Heller, a nutritionist with NYU Langone Health in New York City, explains that our bodies don't comprehend why we do or do not have food they just know when they have received enough nutrients to survive. If a person has been on a restrictive diet, and then resumes eating again, the body may start conserving what it can because it doesn't know when food will resume again. The body is just attempting to keep you alive, and over time, it becomes more efficient at performing this.

Heller said your body will impel you to get food if it thinks you need it. That's the body pushing you to eat and keep it alive. She suggests trying to adopt a dietary pattern that you can follow long-term, advising a mostly plant-based diet, such as the Mediterranean diet.

Scientists agree that making small changes that don't cause a rebound effect and are sustainable, are more efficacious and beneficial for maintaining your health.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

Tick Season Has Arrived In MA, Public Health Officials Say

Massachusetts Department of Public Health (DPH) officials recommend that residents be mindful of ticks while taking part in spring and summer outdoor activities, as tick season has arrived.

At this time of year, healthcare visits related to ticks begin to increase and will remain elevated through the summer. This year, DPH will track those trends and post a monthly ticks report online.

Ticks are tiny bugs most likely found in shady, damp, brushy, wooded, or grassy areas (especially in tall grass), including backyards. The most common ticks are black-legged (deer) ticks and dog ticks which are found throughout Massachusetts and may spread different disease-causing germs when they bite.

The most common tick-borne diseases in Massachusetts are Lyme disease, babesiosis, and anaplasmosis. Other diseases that are rarer, but still occur, are tularemia, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, Borrelia miyamotoi, and Powassan virus.

"Tick-borne illnesses can be severe and taking steps to avoid tick bites is important," said State Epidemiologist Catherine Brown. "The best ways to protect yourself are to use a tick repellent with permethrin or DEET when you are outdoors, do tick checks on yourself, your children and your pets every day, and remove any attached ticks promptly."

Favorite places ticks like to attach themselves to on the body include areas between the toes, back of the knees, groin, armpits, and neck, along the hairline, and behind the ears. Ticks are tiny and may appear as "freckles" on the skin. Health officials say finding a tick is no cause for panic. A pair of fine point tweezers can be used to grip the tick as close to the skin as possible and pull straight out with steady pressure.

People should call their health care provider if they have been bitten by a black-legged tick, or have a rash or symptoms such as fever, headache, fatigue, or sore and aching muscles, especially after a tick bite.

Health officials recommend appropriate bug repellents on skin or clothing and remind parents never to use insect repellents on infants.

The Department has also produced a video depicting the simple steps people can take to prevent tick bites and the illnesses they can cause, and will run tick bite prevention messages on billboards across the Commonwealth throughout the month of May.

For more information about ticks and tick-borne illnesses, visit the DPH website at www.mass.gov/dph/tick.

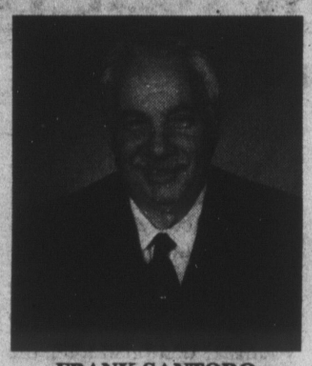
Frank Santoro School Committee Candidate

Retired Quincy High School Principal Frank Santoro announces he is running for a seat on the Quincy School Committee this fall.

Santoro held a seat on the committee for two terms in the late 1980s while teaching in the Brookline School system. After serving 42 years in public education and then retiring, Santoro said he felt the need to offer his experience and knowledge, once again, to the Quincy Public Schools.



FRANK SANTORO

Santoro was educated in the Quincy Public Schools from kindergarten through high school. An experienced educator and administrator in Brookline and Quincy, at all levels, he said he would like to continue to serve in a leadership capacity making sure Quincy's children get the best education. Santoro said he strongly believes that education is Quincy's number one resource and that our growing city's school system remains an excellent one.

In Quincy, Santoro served as principal at the Central Middle School and Quincy High School. He was an influential member of the design team for the new Quincy High School which has won several awards for its design.

Santoro said he wants to make sure the city has a planned vision for new construction and that there is a schedule of maintenance for its schools. He would like to see a continued growth in student learning and guarantee that there is an equitable education for all of its students.

Santoro said he wants to make sure that Quincy's excellent teachers have the necessary tools to do their job, especially with the current technology demands and most importantly, he said he is committed to making sure that Quincy public schools remain a safe learning environment.

Besides being an experienced educator and school committee member, Santoro was president of the Beechwood Knoll PTO and Citywide Parent Council, a member of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board, a member of the Quincy Arts Lottery Council, an education consultant for the architect firm SMMA, an education consultant for Fox 25 News, a ENC college professor for a course on School Climate and Safety, a current board member for Quincy Asian Resource Inc, a member of the Quincy Art Association, a recipient of the Quincy Asian Resource Visionary Award, a recipient of the Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award, and a member of the North Quincy High School Basketball Hall of Fame.

Santoro said that he is committed to excellence in the Quincy Public Schools and to making a great school system an even better one.

Blood Drive May 16 At Beth Shalom-Blue Hills

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills will again join with the Red Cross to sponsor its Third Thursday Community Mitzvah Program Blood Drive on Thursday, May 16th, from 2 to 7 p.m.

There is always a shortage of blood in the warmer weather, so Beth Shalom-Blue Hills is partnering with the Red Cross to conduct the blood drive at the synagogue at 18 Shoolman Way (off Cross Street) in Milton. Appointments are required to donate, and the public is invited to participate.

There are two ways to make an appointment: Online by visiting redcrossblood.org/donating-blood, and entering the sponsor code SHALOM; or by calling the Red Cross at 1-800-RED-CROSS and selecting option 1 for blood donation. then providing the date and location and your information.

Donors are asked to arrive 15 minutes prior to their appointment time. There are only 34 appointment slots available between 2 and 7 p.m.; the whole process takes about one hour, and refreshments will be available

As a blood donor, you will be someone's hero – one pint of blood can save up to three lives! You will help ensure blood is on the shelf when needed – most people think they'll never need blood, but many do. And you will be fulfilling the purpose of the Third Thursday Community Mitzvah Program of Beth Shalom-Blue Hills, which is "doing good deeds for others," an important tenet of Judaism.

For more information about the Blood Drive, the Third Thursday Mitzvah Program, or Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills, call 617-698-3394 or visit www.BethShalom-BlueHills.org. There is parking at the synagogue, with overflow parking on nearby Pleasant Street. Parking is prohibited on Lodge or Maitland Streets.

Ask Rusty: Mother Seeking SSI Benefits For Disabled Child

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: My young daughter is disabled, and I am trying to make ends meet financially. Can you help with a child's SSI claim? Signed: Needy Mother

Dear Needy Mother: "SSI", or "Supplemental Security Income," is a Federal benefit program administered by, but separate from Social Security. SSI is available for low-income disabled seniors and disabled minor children. As your daughter's parent you must apply directly with the Social Security Administration (you cannot apply online). You can do this at the general SSA number (1-800-772-1213) or at your local Social Security office, which you can find by going to www.ssa.gov/locator. Here, you can enter your zip code and get back contact information for your local office, including location, hours, and telephone number to call.

You should call first to make an appointment so as to speed up the SSI application process and avoid long wait times. In order to expedite the application, you should first complete a Child Disability Report which will ask you to provide detailed information about the child and the child's medical condition. A child is considered disabled if suffering from physical or mental impairment which causes a severe functional impairment which has lasted (or is expected to last) more than a year. Go to link for complete information on applying for SSI: www.ssa.gov/applyfordisability/child.htm . In addition to information on the child's eligibility criteria and how to apply, at this SSA website you will also find a link to the Child Disability Report.

Completing the report online is relatively straightforward and intuitive if you have some computer skills but, if not, you can also obtain a copy of the form (SSA-3820) at this link: www.ssa.gov/forms/ssa-3820.pdf . You can download the Child Disability Report form (SSA-3820), print it, fill it out as completely as possible by hand and provide it to Social Security when you submit the SSI application. Gathering all the information requested and providing it to Social Security via the Child Disability Report will serve to greatly expedite the SSI application for your child. Please be aware that there are household income limits and that SSI benefits are closely coordinated with the State in which you live. In fact, Social Security will contact your State's SSI benefit office to provide them with your application, and your State's SSI benefit office will verify the child's eligibility by contacting doctors, hospitals, teachers, medical providers, schools or other contacts you have provided who can verify the child's disability and eligibility. If the child is working, he/she must not be earning more than the monthly allowable amount ($1220 for 2019) in order to be eligible for Supplemental Security Income. Also, be aware that if the application is initially denied, you have the right to appeal that initial decision. And for clarity, money for SSI benefits is not taken from Social Security funds but rather from the Government's general funds.

Health Department Strives To Keep City Clean, Healthy

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ruth Jones, Quincy's new health commissioner, said her department will continue to ensure the city is healthy and clean for its residents and visitors.

Mayor Thomas Koch appointed Jones health commissioner in April after Drew Scheele, the longtime commissioner, accepted a similar job in Scituate. Jones, who turned 63 on April 10, had worked as a nurse in the department for 19 years, most recently as director of nursing.

In a recent interview, she said the department is focused on keeping Quincy and its people healthy.

"Our goal is to keep people healthy, keep the city clean and keep the city healthy, and really to be out there at the request of people when they're having issues," Jones said. "There is nothing worse than keeping your property nice and then your neighbor isn't. Our whole goal is to intervene in those instances. To make sure that you're going to a restaurant and you can eat in a restaurant that is clean and following all the regulations and really enjoy your city because it's such a beautiful city.

"There's so many things to do in this city, but you want to make sure you're healthy and the places you're going to are clean and healthy. Our aim is to keep people from getting sick - to promote health and prevent disease.

"I just want to let people know that we're very amenable to people calling us. All our numbers are listed on our website. I take calls all the time and I answer my phone. Happy to hear from people. Happy to help people. We try to deal with things on a swift basis, a regular basis, because a lot of things we deal with are things that people need to get taken care of right away. Hopefully we're available and we're there to help."

Jones oversees a staff of 11 employees in the Health Department, plus her former position, which is vacant currently. The employees inside the department have worked together for many years, she said, and are dedicated to their jobs.

"We've always had a great office. We have a team of people that most of us have worked together for more than 10, 15 years. We have a few new people, but the bulk of this department has worked together for many, many years and it's more like a family because when you work, you're at work more than you're at home so the people become your family at work," Jones said.

"We have a group of very dedicated people, very knowledgeable people, that do their job, know what they're doing, work well – we work well with each other, we work well with other departments."

Koch and his administration, Jones added, have been supportive of the Health Department over the years.

"I have to say, Quincy is such a big city and there are so many departments and so many people, but the mayor's office has been wonderful in collaboration with all these departments. The mayor's office is very supportive of programs we want to do and different

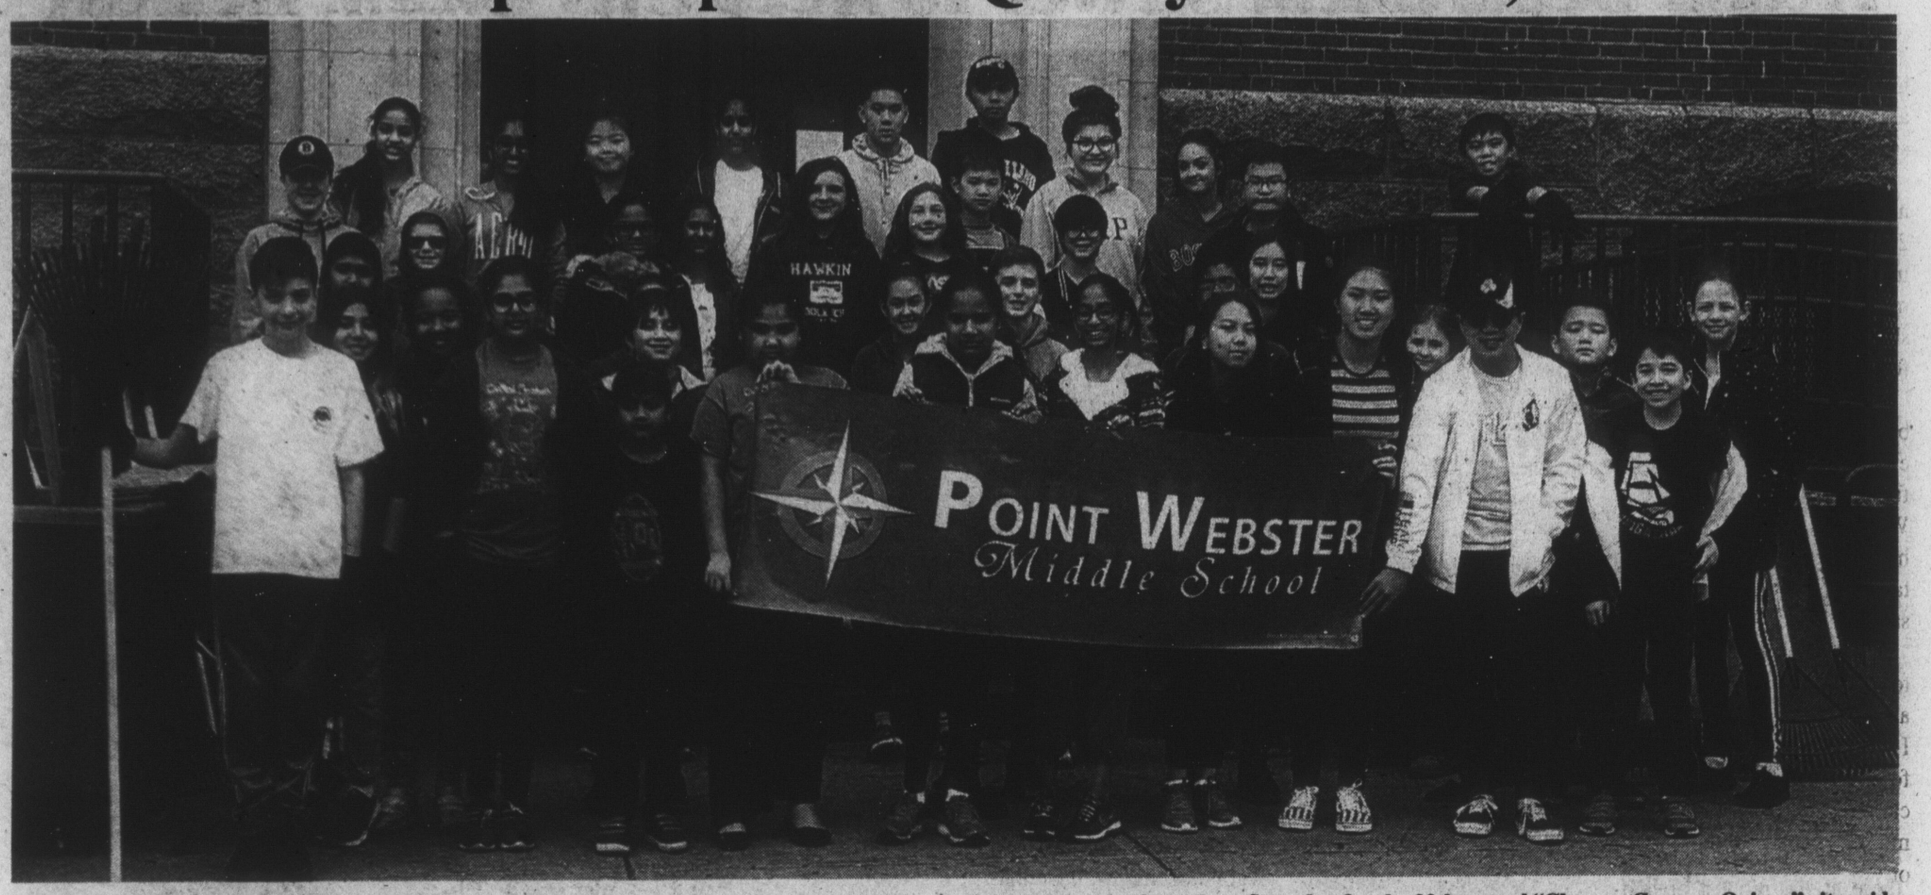
School Groups Help Make Quincy 'Cleaner, Greener'



BEAUTIFICATION BRIGADE – Students at the Point Middle School were among the hundreds of volunteers who fanned out Saturday for the 30th annual "Cleaner, Greener, Quincy" city-wide cleanup. The middle school students mulched, planted flowers, cleaned up the grounds around the school, raked and bagged leaves and swept as they helped beautify the Point Webster school grounds. Another cleanup photo appears below. More will be published in the May 16th issue of The Quincy Sun. Photo Courtesy Christine Barrett initiatives we want to do, and we appreciate that," she said.

OTHER GROUPS PARTICIPATING in Saturday's "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" cleanup were members of the Operation Day's Work - Broad Meadows Middle School and the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library who teamed up to beautify the grounds of the Thomas Crane Public Library. Photo Courtesy Ron Adams

Scheele had served as health commissioner since 2002 and had been a food inspector with the department before that. Jones said she learned a lot from her former boss.

"Drew and I have a little bit different styles – I think everybody does. Drew was funny. I used to call him the Walmart greeter because he knew everybody, and he talked to everybody," Jones said.

"Drew and I worked well together. Drew didn't have a medical background and I did – Drew had more of a food background when he came to the Health Department – so we collaborated on a lot of things. He was a great boss. I learned a lot from Drew."

"He was a great guy," Jones added. "He was a hard worker. He did a lot of good things and initiated a lot of good programs. I'm happy to make the transition into his position and I'm excited to do it."

The Health Department has numerous responsibilities in the city.

"The main mission of public health is to promote health and prevent disease. It encompasses so many things that surround that. Part of it is health in general," Jones said.

The department has two inspectors who focus on food establishments, including restaurants and any store that sells food, even prepackaged items. There are more than 500 such establishments in Quincy today.

"They're restaurants, supermarkets, mom and pop stores. Anything that sells retail food or is a sit-down restaurant or is a drive-through restaurant. Any of those fall under food establishments," Jones said.

"The food inspectors are responsible for going around and inspecting those. Certain establishments are inspected more often than other establishments – high risk establishments, nursing homes, school cafeterias, things like that. Then once a year they all get relicensed. Then there are complaints that come in and they go out with that."

The department also has a housing division that responds to complaints from tenants about unsanitary conditions, and also responds to hoarding situations.

"Our housing section goes out on complaints from tenants with violations in housing. We deal with hoarding cases, which is kind of a newer thing for us within maybe the past five years that we've seen. People all over the United States are seeing that generally," Jones said.

The department also responds to concerns from residents about unsanitary conditions in their neighborhood and has recently hired a new inspector focused on keeping rodents, including rats, in check.

"We deal with unsanitary conditions that you might see outside in a yard – people complain about a neighbor. And one of the larger things we're dealing with right now is rodents – rats," Jones said. "That's a big portion of what our inspectors do and now we actually have a dedicated health inspector to deal just with rodent calls – with rat calls."

The nursing division where Jones formerly worked is responsible for investigating communicable diseases, including tuberculosis and foodborne illnesses, and inspects and licenses camps.

"We have to do investigation of communicable diseases. We do investigation of TB cases under the communicable diseases, but things like foodborne illness, salmonella cases, measles, mumps – things like that that come into play. That's more in the nursing division," she said.

"We also do inspections as part of the nursing division. We do camp inspections. We do inspections of body art facilities. We do licensing for both of those and inspections for both of those. We do some vaccinations – not as many as we used to."

Measles, which was once eradicated in the United States, has now been reported in at least 22 states this year, according to federal officials. Jones said the rise in measles cases started with a since-retracted study published in The Lancet, a British medical journal, in 1998 that found a link between the measles, mumps and rubella vaccine and autism.

"It was eradicated in the United States, measles. We've seen it eradicated for as many years as I remember being a nurse and I've been a nurse for over 40 years," Jones said.

"The issue has become that there was a study years ago done I believe in England that said the MMR vaccine – the measles, mumps, rubella vaccine – caused autism. Everybody got on the bandwagon with this study and you saw people in Hollywood saying, 'don't immunize your child, because these immunizations cause autism,' and that study ended up being a bogus study.

"In fact, they just did... a new MMR study with 650,000 kids and in the study, they had no increase in autism from the vaccine. So, the belief that vaccines are harmful is stopping parents from immunizing their kids, and that's why you're seeing a resurgence of measles."

Measles is a highly communicable diseases, Jones said, and the seriousness of its return should not be downplayed.

"People say, 'well, when I was a kid, if one kid had measles, they took all the kids and put them in the same room so everyone would get the measles and get over it, why is it such a big deal now?'" Jones said.

"Well, first of all, it's been eradicated and now it's back again and that's a big deal for any diseases. Second of all, we have a lot of people that have immune system issues. We have a lot more people being treated with chemotherapy for different types of cancers or different kinds of diseases, which puts a strain on your immune system so now you're more susceptible to catching these kinds of diseases.

"We have people with HIV and AIDS, immune system diseases, that are very susceptible. Even if they've been immunized, sometimes with these diseases they're still going to get it because they're immune system just doesn't work good. And we have more people that have organ transplants that might be on medicines that affect their immune systems.

"So, we have a huge population that can actually now become more susceptible to the disease, and the rate of travel from one place to another has increased so rapidly that it can be passed so quickly. It's a big deal."

Vaccines are required for students in Massachusetts public schools, though exemptions are allowed for medical and religious reasons, Jones said.

"The state Department of Public Health allows a religious and a medical exemption, and it has to be a written, established exemption, so parents have to supply certain documents to the school department," Jones said. "And there are some kids, I'm sure, in the school system that have a religious exemption. A medical exemption would be, say if a child had a tetanus shot and had a severe reaction and could never have another tetanus shot. That child has a legitimate reason for not doing it.

"Those type of exemptions are allowed but if there were an outbreak, say there is a child exempt from getting MMR and there is an outbreak of measles, then that child would be excluded for a certain amount of time. We look to the CDC and the state Department of Public Health for guidance on that. I think most cities and towns do the same thing.

"THERE'S SO MANY things to do in this city, but you want to make sure you're healthy and the places you're going to are clean and healthy," says recently appointed Quincy Health Commissioner Ruth Jones. "Our aim is to keep people from getting sick - to promote health and prevent disease." Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

"We have not had measles, thank goodness. Quincy parents do a really good job of immunizing their kids. Massachusetts does a great job. If you look at Massachusetts compared to other states in the United States, Massachusetts has a very high immunization rate. We do a really good job and there are a lot of immunizations that are offered free. The pediatricians in Massachusetts do a really good job."

The Quincy Health Department does offer some vaccinations for adults, including tetanus shots and hepatitis A in cases of an outbreak. The department formerly offered the flu vaccine as well, but demand for that dropped considerably once the state allowed pharmacists to give flu shots, Jones said.

The department does not offer vaccinations to children, she said, because those are better left to pediatricians.

"Childhood vaccine really should be done through a pediatrician. Kids need to have their yearly checkup and they need a whole bunch of different vaccines that some kids will have a reaction to, a fever or whatever, so we feel in our department that kids should go to their pediatrician," Jones said.

The warmer months are a busy time for the Health Department, with mosquito and tick season in full swing. The department offers guidance on the city's website, quincyma.gov, on how to avoid catching mosquito- and tick-borne illnesses.

The department also tests water quality at the city's 10 municipal beaches; the state tests Wollaston Beach.

"They (DCR) do Wollaston but we do all of the other beaches...The beach testing is done on a weekly basis once the season comes in. If their counts are high the beaches are closed and then they're retested," Jones said.

"Everything is posted, including the DCR Wollaston Beach results and all the other results, on the city's webpage and we have a dedicated beach line in the summer so people can call and make sure the beaches are open. If not, they can swim at their own risk."

Water quality at the city's beaches, she added, has improved in recent years.

"You do have some times that the beaches, the counts are high. Usually after a heavy rain you'll see the beach counts will be high," she said. "But, if you go back and look at our beaches for the last couple years, they've done pretty well. Beach testing is a great way to let residents know what's going on. Can they swim? Is it safe to swim?

"But, for the most part, I think the beaches that we test have done very well in the last couple years."

As health commissioner, Jones also sits on the city's Board of License Commissioners, along with City Clerk Nicole Crispo, Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca, Fire Chief Jack Cadegan and Police Chief Paul Keenan.

Jones said she has enjoyed her time on the licensing board since she joined it.

"It's a fairly new role to me. I enjoy it," she said. "It's something different for me and I enjoy being involved in it and I'm learning quite a bit."

"It's a nice change for me," Jones added. "I'm excited to be on there and to be able to learn from the other people on there. There is such a wealth of knowledge when you listen to the people on the licensing board. It's a great experience and hopefully I'll be a good addition to the licensing board."

Quincy Public School Enrollment Continues To Grow

18 students this year and Quincy High gained nine. The superintendent said the broadcasting and engineering/technology classes at North Quincy have seen a jump.

Despite the influx of students throughout the district, class sizes remain at reasonable levels.

"Most schools have low class sizes," said DeCristofaro. "Eighty percent of elementary classes have 20 or fewer students."

According to school committee guidelines, kindergarten classes are required to have no more than 25 students; grades one through three a maximum of 26, grades four through eight no more than 28, and grades nine through 12 are capped at 30.

"Almost always the class sizes are within the guidelines," DeCristofaro said.

He noted 95 percent of middle school classes have 24 or fewer students and 86 percent of both high schools' classes have 25 or fewer. All high school foreign language and science classes have 26 or fewer students.

Open enrollment – where parents can request their child to attend a different school in the district – has seen a decrease. DeCristofaro also noted that there are fewer requests granted because of space limitations.

Several schools have special education programs for 665 students. There are 160 special education students with significant disabilities that attend out-of-district programs – a consistent number over the past few years. DeCristofaro noted there is an effort to keep as many students in-district as possible.

The superintendent explained the importance of monitoring enrollment trends.

"Enrollment dictates the budget, transportation, staffing, and curriculum materials," he said. "We want to make sure everything is as effective at our facilities as can be."

DeCristofaro noted that while redistricting is an option to level out overcrowded schools, it is not being considered at this time.

"It's something that we absolutely do not want to do," he said. "The neighborhoods in our city are the driving force of our school system. There is a lot of pride in that and that should continue."

DeCristofaro said kindergarten registration that is held in early spring "helps us to gauge where we're going."

It was noted that about Quincy retains about 90 percent of students in the city's schools rather than going to private school compared to about 30 percent in Boston.

"We have so many opportunities here," said DeCristofaro.

In another matter, the committee voted – Douglas Gutro was absent – to not participate in the state School Choice program, citing space limitations and budgetary affects. School Choice allows students to attend a school in another district from where they reside.

The committee voted to approve an amendment to the high school graduation exercises policy restricting messages and lettering decorations on graduation caps. Messages or initials that are related to drugs, gangs, profanity, or violence are not allowed. If the principal deems a decoration inappropriate, a replacement cap will be provided.

Two parents addressed the committee during its Open Forum session requesting additional support be considered during the upcoming budget deliberations.

Dan Malloy of the Quincy Choral Boosters requested the hiring of a choral teacher at both high schools, explaining how his daughter and son benefited from the music program.

Citywide PTO Co-President Scott Alessandro advocated for professional development for high school health teachers so a health and sexuality program could be developed for both high schools. He also suggested a data position be created to provide what he called valuable assessment and related data that can be correlated and disseminated.

The proposed 2019-20 budget will be reviewed at the committee's May 15 meeting.

Quincy Police Shave Heads, Raise $26,000 For 'The Mighty Quinn'

QUINCY POLICE OFFICERS raised more than $26,000 for the St. Baldrick's Foundation at a recent "Shave-A-Thon." The fundraiser was held at The Corner Barbershop and owner Denise Calabro and her staff volunteered for the day. Officer Tara Waters' three-year-old son, Quinn, was diagnosed with medulloblastoma (a childhood cancer) and is currently going through his third round of chemotherapy. The event was organized by Lt. Mark Kennedy and Officer Gregg Hartnett to show support for "The Mighty Quinn" and let him kow that nobody fights alone.

Shine Under The Stars Benefit Gala June 30

This Star Won't Go Out will hold its annual Shine Under the Stars Gala Sunday, June 30 from 6 to 9 p.m. at Alba Restaurant in Quincy Center.

TSWGO began in memory of Esther Earl, a local Quincy high school student whose battle with cancer inspired the best selling novel and blockbuster movie "The Fault in Our Stars." Since 2011, TSWGO has given away 450,000 dollars in support of childhood cancer, providing funds to help pay for travel, housing, and other cost-of-living expenses. TSWGO frees up families to focus on their child who is in treatment—and that's a gift beyond value.

This Star Won't Go Out's Shine Under the Stars Gala will be hosted by author and TV personality Sorboni Banerjee. The event will feature a raw bar and hot buffet, drinks, a raffle, silent auction, and wine pull. You'll also have the opportunity to meet one of our awesome Star kids.

Space is limited. For tickets visit ShineUnderthe-Stars.com

The event sponsor is Alba Restaurant. Other sponsors include Granite Telecommunications and FastSigns of Quincy, and Briggs Corner Store of Attleboro.

Support from local businesses and individuals is vital to making a difference for families caring for their child during their cancer journey. Additional partnership levels are available by contacting Lori Earl, executive director, This Star Won't Go Out, at lori.earl@tswgo.org.

For more information visit the website www.TSWGO.org.

Spring For Poetry

Celebrate poetry at the Thomas Crane Public Library on Wednesday, May 8 from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Quincy College PTA Pinning Ceremony Thursday

Quincy College will celebrate the Class of 2019 Physical Therapist Assistant (PTA) Program Graduates at a Pinning Ceremony today (Thursday.)

The Class of 2019 Physical Therapist Assistant Graduates include:

Elyse Bergamini of Quincy, Roberto Cadet of Randolph, Helsom Dias of Plymouth, Amanda Lucey of Hanover, Jessica Lynn of Plymouth, Brittany Reid of Hingham, Laurie Vernazzaro of Kingston and Taylor Zigouras of Wareham.

Gerald Koocher, Ph.D, ABPP, Quincy College Provost and Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs and Program Director Christine Rodday, DPT will deliver greetings and present awards. Pins will be presented to the graduating students by program faculty. Elyse Bergamini will provide student reflections to fellow classmates to conclude the ceremony.

During the Pinning Ceremony, Quincy College will recognize two students for academic excellence and clinical excellence as well as recognize a clinical partners awarding the Outstanding Clinical Teaching Award.

PTA graduates work under the direction and supervision of a licensed Physical Therapist. The PTA program is a combination of foundation education courses, technical education courses, and clinical experiences. Students complete three clinical affiliations during the program, and this allows them a chance to network and frequently creates job leads post-graduation. PTAs are employed by hospitals, outpatient facilities, and rehabilitation facilities to name a few and can work in areas specializing in a wide range of topics including geriatrics, pediatrics, neurology, and orthopedics.

The Physical Therapist Assistant (PTA) Program is a two-year, five-semester Associate Degree program. The 900-square foot PTA lab located at Quincy College at Plymouth is fully equipped with modern equipment and full of technology that is at the forefront of PTA training. This includes, but is not limited to, providing the students technology for completing electronic documentation and SMART Board outfitted classrooms for instruction.

PTA Program Graduates are invited to walk in the Quincy College Commencement Exercises to be held at the South Shore Music Circus on May 24th.

The application for the Fall 2019 Physical Therapist Assistant Program deadline is May 17, 2019. To learn more about the program or to apply visit: https://quincycollege.edu/program/physical-therapist-assistant/

Downtown Construction Activities

Proposed work activities for the week of May 5th, 2019

- Water work on Cottage Avenue is expected to be completed in the upcoming week. Once the test comes back ok for the connections to be made to the water system, the contractor will reconnect the domestic and fire services on Cottage Avenue followed by a shutdown to tie in the newly installed system into the current watermain.
- Fiberoptic work will be taking place in front of the old Iron Furnace at 1495 Hancock Street. You will need to follow the pedestrian detour which will reroute you across the street and back. There will also be construction materials being brought in on the backside of 1495 Hancock Street via Ross Way. This work will occur about a half a dozen times over the next 3 to 4 weeks. When the materials are being brought in, the alley between Ross Way and Hancock Street will be closed for public safety reasons and the pedestrian foot traffic will be detoured by way of Cliveden Street.
- The contractor working on the General's bridge will be pouring the new retaining wall on the west side of Burgin Parkway over the next 2 to 3 weeks. Demolition work will be occurring within the fenced in area on Parkingway. Parkingway will remain open during these activities.
- Activities within the old Hancock Lot and work on Nova Suites and the new City Atrium continues to move forward.

Written Land Documents Electronically Transcribed At Registry Of Deeds

Registry of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds history buffs that all hand written land documents at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds have been electronically transcribed and are available for viewing and printing.

"The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds has been in existence for 225 years. During that time, the Registry has gone from the days of scriveners with quill pens to the modern era of computers and advanced document imaging," O'Donnell said. "We are proud of the effort undertaken to transcribe images of handwritten land documents dating back from 1793 to 1900. With the transcription process complete, we now have all our land documents, approximately 8,000,000, available at our website www.norfolkdeeds.org."

O'Donnell further stated, "We are extraordinarily proud that the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds was the first in New England back in 2017 to go through this transcription process. The effort undertaken to transcribe these hard to read land documents represented a special effort by the Registry and its vendor to have an accurate representation of these handwritten land documents. This undertaking has allowed the public to perform historical, genealogical and land record research."

O'Donnell added that 12.5 million words of Old English prose written in cursive penmanship were transcribed into readable computer text.

It should be noted that while the transcribers made a best effort to translate these hard to read documents, their accuracy is not guaranteed.

"These transcribed documents," O'Donnell said, "are not legal documents in and of itself, and are not considered binding on the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds or its employees. It is considered merely a convenient reference for Registry users. For documentation purposes, users should refer to the scanned image of the original document instead of the transcribed image."

"It is a wonderful time to take advantage of this technological breakthrough," O'Donnell continued. "Genealogy InTime Magazine estimated that 7.93 million Americans are involved in tracking their ancestors." The Register also stated that two-time Pulitzer Prize winning historian David McCullough was fascinated and delighted to learn about the project, writing "...you {Registry} are making a large and important contribution and I send my warmest congratulations."

Concluding his remarks, O'Donnell stated, "As Register of Deeds, I take very seriously my responsibility to be the custodian of land document information in Norfolk County. Part of that responsibility is to ensure the accuracy and accessibility of these land documents. Future generations will now be able to read these transcribed images with the goal of ensuring a historically correct record of land documents in Norfolk County."

Ask Barbara Graceffa:

Displaying Clothing

My grandmother recently passed away and I'd like to upcycle some of her clothing to remember her by. Ideally, I'd like to be able to display it in my home. Any creative inspirations for me? Evelyn

There are lots of ways to do this. The first is a memory quilt where the fabric is either cut and sewn together like a patchwork quilt or fashioned into an appliqué quilt for smaller items like a christening gown. If you have ever seen a T-shirt quilt like one made from a collection of concert Ts, this is an example of a memory quilt. I made my first memory quilt for my husband in 1996 with T-shirts from the 100th running of the Boston Marathon. I am currently working on another memory quilt, making a wall hanging from embroidered tablecloths and crocheted doilies and, as I stitch it together, I feel like I'm connected to the original owner!

Clothing can also be made into pillows. I've made cool pillows using neckties, but my favorite pillows have been those made from Boy or Girl Scout uniforms, neckerchiefs, and/or sashes full of badges.

But we are only limited by our imagination. (I have a framed saying in my design studio which says: Never underestimate the power of a woman with a sewing machine!). For example, if your grandmother loved to cook, I'd suggest you use pieces of her clothing to make a few aprons for yourself.

In a similar vein, I've upcycled closed-toe shoes or boots and flat-bottomed pocket books into memory pieces as well. These items make conversation-piece, floral arrangements by adding silk flowers to them. The most common ones I have made have been from a bride's wedding shoes.

Evelyn, as Mother's Day is nigh, I wish you many happy memories of your grandmother. And Happy Mother's Day to my faithful readers, too!

80-Unit Building On Adams Street Proposed

By SCOTT JACKSON

A developer has proposed building a six-story, 80-unit building on Adams Street in Quincy Center.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy will hold a community meeting on the proposal at 6 p.m. on Thursday inside the lower level meeting room at the James R. McIntyre Government Center, 1305 Hancock St.

The building would be located at 24-26 Adams St. – 24 Adams St. is now home to a single-story commercial building, while 26 Adams St. was formerly home to Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home. The properties are located inside a Business C zoning district and the parcels include a combined 32,000 square feet of land.

The six-story building would be constructed over a two-level parking garage, according to Edward Fleming, the attorney for the developer, Capital Construction Management. The eighty units would be sold as condominiums.

Fleming said the proposed building "has been designed with traditional architectural elements in consideration of its location on Adams Street, next to the Adams Academy."

The project would require approval from the Planning Board, Zoning Board of Appeals and the Historic Commission, Fleming said.

QCAP First Time Home Buyer Workshop

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Friday, April 26, at approximately 1:35 a.m., Officer Kent Yee was working the police detail at the Cathay Pacific Restaurant. A female customer who came in to pick up her order approached the officer and told him that there was a man outside at the entrance with his head under a woman's shirt.

The officer left the crowded front counter and made his way to the front entrance foyer area where he observed four customers standing inside near the front door. He found the female in question leaning on the wall with a male very close to her. The female had her back against the door while draping a bright yellow safety jacket around the male's head. He was slightly kneeling over with his head buried into her chest and his hands around her gluteus area.

Officer Yee approached them while announcing "Quincy Police" but they were so physically involved with each other that neither one of them acknowledged his presence. The officer then tapped the male on his left shoulder and identified himself again. The male then removed his head from the female's blouse, which was now up to her shoulder level with one side of her under garment pulled down exposing her right breast.

After instructing the female to pull her blouse down, Officer Yee asked the couple what they were doing and the male said he was waiting for a ride. While talking with the couple, the officer then heard someone from inside the lobby doorway yell, "Hey a##$%^&; hey F@#$%^&* a##$%^&" repeatedly. The officer glanced over to see a male angrily yelling and then charging at the officer with a clenched fist. This male (suspect 1) then punched the officer multiple times for no apparent reason.

Officer Yee stepped away and blocked the punches and then grabbed suspect 1 around his upper torso, while telling him to stop resisting and that he was under arrest for assault and battery. Suspect 1 broke free and started punching again but was brought quickly to the floor by the officer, who then radioed for help. While restraining him on the floor, the officer was not able to place him in handcuffs due to the suspect's size and strength as he continued to resist. The officer was unsure if the radio transmission went through but could hear customers shouting that the officer needed help, although no one came to assist. The officer was now in pain from multiple punches to the ribs and his left knee was injured when suspect 1 fell on top of him.

LT. DAN MINTON

As Officer Yee struggled to hold onto the suspect, a large crowd gathered around and hovered over him. Moments later, Sgt. DesRoche arrived on scene and ordered the crowd back and then grabbed hold of suspect 1 and told him to place his hands behind his back. As the officers attempted to handcuff the suspect, the female began shouting profanities, making several attempts to interfere with the arrest. She continued shouting obscene words during the entire arrest. The violent struggle continued outside the doors and to the sidewalk.

At this point, Sgt. DesRoche used his pepper spray on the suspect but it had little effect as he continued fighting. Officer Yee removed his ASP baton from his duty belt and warned the suspect to cease, but he continued struggling. The officer then applied one strike to the suspect's upper body which should have slowed the suspect down, but instead, he grabbed the top of the baton and a struggle ensued for the control of the baton. Officer Yee reached for his pepper spray and hit the suspect directly in the face at close range. At this time Officers Brockmeier and Wood arrived to assist and the suspect was handcuffed.

Suspect 1, a 28-year-old Hyde Park resident, was arrested on charges of assault and battery on a police officer, disorderly person and resisting arrest. While attempting to bring suspect 1 to an awaiting cruiser, he continued to be combative and uncooperative. The suspect had to be assisted off the ground by Officers Dabilis and Yee because he was intentionally becoming legless and then refused to sit into the cruiser's prisoner seat.

Several physical attempts were made to place him in the back seat of the cage car but he kept using his legs to kick off the side of the cruiser. After struggling with him several times to place him into the cruiser, Officer Wood warned him if he did not comply he was going to apply the Taser on him. Suspect 1 continued his struggling and non-compliance so he was tased. This worked effectively and suspect 1 voluntarily got into the cruiser.

During this time, the female and the male (who had his head in her blouse) increased their yelling and taunting, shouting obscenities at other customers and then focused on the officers at the scene. Their behavior caused customers to walk away from them to avoid contact. They were advised numerous times to cease to no avail.

One male and a female, the sister of suspect 1, were placed under arrest. The female, a 25-year-old Foxboro resident, was charged with being a disorderly person and the male, a 28-year-old North Attleboro resident, was charged with disorderly person and resisting arrest. Nice Work!

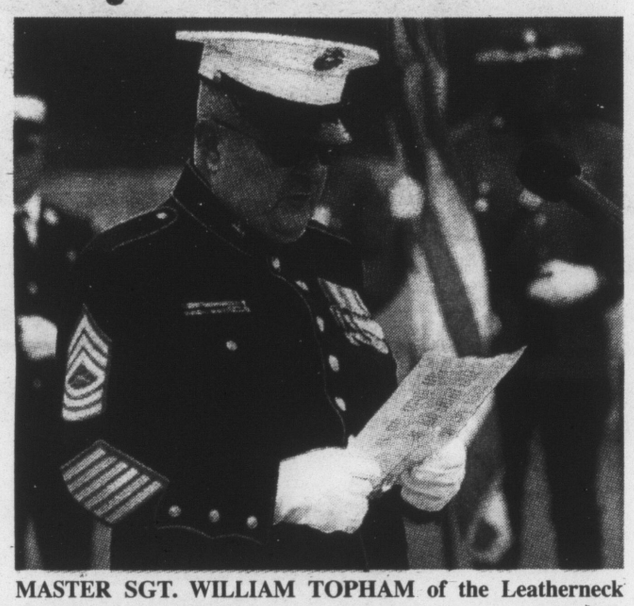
WWII Hero, Marine PFC William Caddy Remembered

MARC CONNOLLY of the William Caddy Detachment Marine Corps League welcomes the gathering at Caddy Park to honor Quincy's World War II hero, Marine PFC William Caddy.

By TOM GORMAN

Marine PFC William R. Caddy was pinned down in a shell hole with fellow Marines during the WWII Battle of Iwo Jima when he suddenly saw a Japanese grenade hurtling toward them and falling in their midst. Without hesitation, the Quincy native dove on top of the grenade as it exploded, sacrificing his life, but saving the lives of his comrades.

On April 28, Caddy's family, veterans, residents, and local officials gathered at Caddy Memorial Park on Quincy Shore Drive for the annual ceremony that honors his heroic action that earned him the Medal of Honor. Color guards from the Quincy police and fire departments, State Police, Leatherneck Honors Society of Massachusetts, and North Quincy High School Junior ROTC flanked the granite memorial stone that honors the young Marine. The William Caddy Detachment Marine Corps League, named in Caddy's honor, hosted the ceremony.



MASTER SGT. WILLIAM TOPHAM of the Leatherneck Honors Society of Mass., reads an account of Marine PFC William Caddy's heroic actions during the Battle of Iwo Jima.

'The Indianapolis And Its Aftermath' Topic At Historical Society May 16

The World War II story of the U.S.S. Indianapolis and controversial subsequent events will be presented by lecturer Bob Begin at the Adams Academy on Thursday, May 16, at 7 p.m.

In July, 1945, the Indianapolis, a heavy cruiser, was being refit in California when she received a Top Secret mission to deliver elements of the atomic bomb that was to be dropped on Hiroshima. Returning from this assignment, traveling alone, she was torpedoed and sunk by a Japanese submarine on July 30. Nine hundred men went into the water. They would remain undiscovered for almost three full days.

In a series of incredible blunders, the Navy did not even realize the ship was missing. The men in the water faced numerous challenges: dehydration, exhaustion, hypoxia, dementia, and the primal threat of sharks. Only 317 men were rescued. Less than two weeks later, Japan sued for peace.

The Navy did not release news of the sinking until Sept 15. The public demanded an answer. The ship's captain, Charles McVay, was unjustly court martialed. Many years later, he would be exonerated.

Begin, whose previous programs include the USS Quincy, the HMS Bounty, and the Scott Antarctic Expedition, will offer an illustrated presentation and take the audience through the details of the event and its tragic ironies and the questions of possible coverup.

Everyone is welcome to attend. There is no charge for admission.

Quincy Skater Takes Home Gold In Int'l Competition

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy's Abigail Newton was among the members of a Boston-based theatre on ice team who skated their way into first place during a recent international competition in France.

The 14-year-old Newton, an eighth grader at Central Middle School, is a member of Theatre on Ice Boston's novice team, Encore of Boston. Newton and her teammates skated in the Nations Cup Theatre On Ice competition, held in April in the town of Epinal in eastern France.

Encore of Boston took home first place in the novice division, which is primarily for skaters under the age of 15, besting teams from around the world, including France, Germany, Italy, Mexico, Russia, Ukraine and Uzbekistan.

"It was really awesome, because you got to skate under Team USA and represent your country," Newton said. "That felt really nice, especially when you were standing on the podium and they played your national anthem."

Newton's mother, Laura, is a former figure skater. Newton remembers seeing her mother watch a figure

Quincy Bows To Canton In Girls Lacrosse

By TOM JOYCE

Both teams poured in the goals, albeit the Quincy High girls' lacrosse team came up on the short end.

The Presidents shined offensively in their home game against Canton May 3rd at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. However, so did their opponent and as a result, they dropped the contest, 20-15. With the loss, the Presidents fell to 2-8 on the season.

Canton got off to a hot start, pouring in five goals in the first seven minutes of the contest before Quincy could respond. However, eight minutes in, Alyssa Ryan plopped in the Presidents first goal of the game; she scored off a pass from Maggie Martin.

Canton responded with a goal of their own 17 seconds later. However, the Presidents would soon find themselves on a hot streak.

In a 55-second span, the Presidents scored four goals and cut Canton's lead to 6-5 lead with 14:22 left in the first half. Two of the goals came from Martin while Maddie Bailey and Ryan each had one respectively; Megan Bailey had the assist on Maddie Bailey's goal. And with 12:20 left in the half, Martin tied the game at 6-6, bouncing one in to the back of the Canton net.

Canton then had a hot streak of their own, piling on three goals in a two minute span to take a 9-6 lead. Maggie Tierney narrowed the deficit with 5:39 remaining in the first half, beating out a pair of defenders before scoring a goal. And with a minute left in the first, Tierney fired in a goal to make it a 9-8 game. However, in the final 30 seconds of the first half, Canton scored two goals uncovered to go up 11-8 before the start of the second half.

The Bulldogs kept this momentum going to start the second half, netting a pair of goals in the first three minutes of it, extending their lead to 13-8. Megan Bailey scored for Quincy 3:26 into the first half, beating out a pair of defenders, but Canton netted a goal of their own just 11 seconds later. From there, the Presidents responded with some momentum of their own, notching four straight goals to make it a 14-13 contest.

Martin rifled in a goal into the bottom right of the Canton net 3:54 into the second half. Four minutes later, Tierney capitalized on a power play opportunity, scoring on a free shot. Two minutes after that, Maddie Bailey put in a goal while charging towards the net and with 14:13 remaining in the game, Megan Bailey scooped up a groundball and proceeded to tomahawk it skating competition on television when she was 6 or 7 years old. That's when she decided to take up skating.

"When I was younger, my mom was a figure skater and she was watching skating on the TV," Newton said. "I saw and I just told her I wanted to be a skater."

Newton said her mother has been a great help over the years.

"My mom helps me a lot. My mom drives me everywhere and she supports me with everything," Newton said. "She helps me to become a better person with skating."

Theatre on ice, she explained, features teams of twenty skaters performing choreographed routines. The tournament in France included a short program and a free program. The event's organizers included certain requirements for the short program, while TOI Boston's choreographer, Adam Blake, came up with a routine inspired by the children's book "Where The Wild Things Are" for the free program.

Newton has skated with TOI Boston for the past five years, competing across the United States in places like Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Cape Cod. The team will travel to Birmingham, Alabama, for a national competition next month.

Newton said she skates up to five times a week for practice, including solo skates, between two and four hours each time. Encore of Boston practices together on Sunday nights for two to four hours, including time both on and off the ice.

Newton's father, Joseph, Quincy's assistant city clerk, said his daughter is dedicated to skating.

"We're so proud of her. She is very dedicated to the sport and it's a great team environment. All of the kids on there really work hard and they are dedicated. It's a wonderful thing to see your daughter be part of," he said. "She works at it hard."

Newton said she and her mother have started to talk about forming a skating club at North Quincy High School next year.

"There are clubs that do skating, and they don't have one at North yet, so we were thinking of maybe making a skating club," she said. "I know there are other skaters in the Quincy area…who would be interested."

Newton is also a member of the track and cross country teams at Central Middle School. TOI Boston has also participated in the Walk for Hunger and Newton took part in the Sk8 to Elimin8 Cancer event, which raises money for the Scott Hamilton CARES Foundation, in May 2018. Joseph Newton said his daughter raised up to $5,000 during that fundraiser.

"A lot of people from Quincy came and supported it," he said. "It was nice."

Quincycles To Lead Bike To Work Day Convoy May 17

Also Co-Hosting Learn To Ride A Bike Workshop

To celebrate National Bike to Work Day on Friday, May 17, Quincycles will lead a bike convoy from Quincy City Hall to Boston City Hall to join the annual Boston Bikes celebration for those who ride a bike to work.

In addition, Quincycles will co-host a Learn to Ride a Bike class with Bike Milton and MassBike at 6 p.m. that same day.

Anyone who would like to try bike commuting or who already regularly commutes by bike is welcome to join the convoy at any one of these locations: Quincy City Hall at 6:50 a.m.; Hancock Street and Beale Street at 7 a.m.; Hancock Street and Hollis Street at 7:05 a.m.; Tenean Beach at 7:20 a.m.

Arrive 5-7 minutes early to ensure meeting up with the convoy. The ride is free and open to the public.

The Festival at Boston City Hall Plaza will include an expo, a free breakfast for bicyclists, and a t-shirt. Register for this convoy at https://www.boston.gov/departments/boston-bikes/bike-work-day.

On Friday, May 17 at 6 p.m., League of American Bicyclists certified instructors will hold a class for adults and mature teens ages 16+ who want to learn to ride a bicycle. With a safe, easy, effective method, students will learn how to balance, pedal, start, stop, and steer a bike, as well as adjust a helmet for proper fit.

Most people learn to ride in one session, but even if they don't, they'll leave equipped with an easy, low-stress way to teach themselves.

The class is $10 and will run with a minimum of 5 students.

Bikes and helmets are available to borrow upon request for those who need them. For more information and to register visit https://www.massbike.org/learn_to_ride_milton419.

Quincycles is a group of Quincy residents advocating for bicycle infrastructure on our city streets and promoting responsible bicycling as a means of transportation, recreation, and exercise in Quincy.

More information about the group and this event can be found on their website at www.Quincycles.org or by email quincycles@gmail.com.

Quincy Rides The Spine Ride Saturday To Celebrate Bay State Bike Week

Quincycles and the Quincy Planning Department are celebrating Bay State Bike Week with the city's fifth annual Quincy Rides the Spine bike ride along Hancock and Washington Streets on Saturday, May 11 at the Quincy Recreation Department, 1 Merrymount Parkway.

The ride is free and open to the public. Registration for the event begins at 8:30 a.m. and the ride will start at 9 a.m.

The ride route connecting the Neponset Bridge with the Fore River Bridge is the backbone of a network of bikeways throughout the city as designated in Quincy's Bicycle and Pedestrian Network Plan from 2015.

Members of the Quincy Police Department Bicycle Unit will escort bicyclists for the length of this group ride.

Refreshments and a raffle of items donated by Anderson Bicycle will follow the ride.

NQ Boys Tennis Courting Success This Season

The North Quincy High School boys varsity tennis team is experiencing success on the court this season with a 6-3 overall record and 4-3 in the Patriot League.

On Monday, NQ defeated Pembroke 5-0 for its sixth win of the season.

The Red Raiders are led by junior and 2018 MVP Shane Lerkvikarn who is 9-0 in singles matches so far this season.

Also competing for North Quincy tennis are senior Alex Atannasov, senior Adam Tlacoxolal-Chua, junior Peyton McGaffigan, senior James Zheng, senior Jason Chan and senior Josh Dangora.

"We have a very strong team top to bottom, each kid has put in the time in the off-season to go after a league championship, which we very well can achieve if we continue to work hard and stay consistent," said head coach Matt Ramponi.

Singles 1 Shane Lerkvikarn who was picked as a captain as a sophomore as well, along with being picked as the Patriot League MVP last season as a sophomore, heads this group.

"Shane is off to an amazing start 9-0, with a huge win over Hanover's singles 1 former league MVP and future division 2 college player in two straight sets (7-5, 6-1)," Ramponi said. "On that day we beat Hanover as a team in a big upset 5-0 to put ourselves in position to compete for a league championship."

Lerkvikarn's overall record from his freshman year to now is an amazing 38-3 regular season and 46-4 including states.

"He's a special kind of athlete but more importantly he's a great leader and teammate," Ramponi said. "The senior leadership on this team is second to none. They hold each other accountable along with encouraging each other day in and day out.

"Our three losses came to powerhouses Hingham, Duxbury and Plymouth North. We competed very well in all three matches, but credit to those programs for getting the wins."

Ramponi said North Quincy will be squaring off with Scituate for a title this season.

"They are always at the top of the league, extremely well coached and a great program. My guys can't wait for that opportunity to play them, both our matches have been rained out, so it will come down to the wire.

"Coaching a group of kids like this, seeing them grow as athletes and as young men since they were freshmen is really why you do this, the wins are fun, but watching them grow as people is the real satisfaction. All these young men will go on and be very successful at whatever they choose to do in life. Some will play tennis in college, but all will become successful. It speaks volumes to their families, teachers and their other coaches."

Ramponi credits assistant coach Daniel Wong as one of the reasons the team is achieving success on the court.

"I have had the same assistant for the last three seasons, a former player who also plays at UMass Boston, Daniel Wong. We wouldn't be where we are at today without him. He's amazing with the kids but also provides an ample amount of knowledge about the game to the kids. He is going to be a great head coach someday, if he chooses to go that route. He must be recognized for all his hard work and sacrifices he's made to help this program and specifically this group over the last three seasons."

Ramponi said his doubles 1 is playing extremely well right now, winning three straight hard matches (seniors James Zheng and Adam Tlacoxolal-Chua). They are close friends which helps tremendously in their chemistry.

Singles 2 senior captain Alex Atanassov (linebacker on the north Quincy football team and Patriot League all star in football as well) brings some serious intensity and passion to the game and our team. He competes at a high level day in and day out.

Singles 3 Peyton McGaffigan (junior also plays defense on the North Quincy high hockey team) is an extremely talented tennis player. He has the length and the high IQ to really finish this season strong.

Doubles 2 senior Jason Chan and senior Josh Dangora (played center on the North Quincy football team) are also starting to catch their stride right now. "Josh is a first-year tennis player. It takes some time to develop that winning chemistry with your doubles partner, and they are getting there," Ramponi said.

"It's been great to get some kids who play some of the main stream more popular sports, to come play tennis. No matter the outcome of the season, these kids are all winners, we have more work to do, but no matter what they will finish this year off as winners." Ramponi added.

NORTH QUINCY junior Shane Lerkvikarn and the Red Raiders' varsity boys tennis team are experiencing success on the court this season. Lerkvikarn is 9-0 in his singles matches and the team has an overall record of 6-3 as of Tuesday.

into the back of the Canton net, making it a one-score game.

Canton responded by putting up a pair of goals, extending their lead to three. With 9:37 remaining, Ryan sidearmed a shot and the ball went between the Canton goaltender's legs, good for a goal; this forced a Canton timeout.

Following the timeout, Canton's defense was tough, preventing the Presidents from getting many serious shot opportunities. Instead, they dominated possession time in the final ten minutes of the game and scored four unanswered goals in a five minute span, putting them up 20-14 with just 1:48 remaining in the game.

This did not give the Presidents enough time to make a comeback. Even so, Martin, rolled a goal into the right hand side of Canton's net with 58 seconds left in the game. After that, neither team scored and Canton secured the victory.

Quincy Softball Falls To Hanover

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High girls softball team faced one of their toughest opponents yet on Monday afternoon.

The Presidents hosted the Hanover Indians, battled hard for seven innings and took a 13-0 loss to fall to 3-8 on the season.

"They're a great softball team over there," Presidents head coach Greg Sommers said of Hanover. "They hit the ball well, they field pretty nice. Our starter, Juliana Tracey, pitched well for us, we just need the defense to do a little more to help us out in the field. The defense was decent. But we could stand to clean up a couple things and the weather over the past month hasn't helped us. Hopefully, we can get some nice weather this week so we can get back out there and work on some things."

Quincy starting pitcher Juliana Tracey pitched to contact in the bout against Hanover, striking out four batters in a complete game effort.

After surrendering a run in the bottom of the first inning, the Presidents had an RBI opportunity of their own, but they were unable to capitalize. With one out, Ashley Grehan ripped a double to centerfield. However, a strikeout and popout later, the inning was over and the Presidents did not get the run.

Hanover tacked on another run in the second inning on an infield error, walk and RBI single; the following inning, a pair of North Quincy varsity baseball team defeated Pembroke Monday by a score of 8-3.

Senior Danny Ferrara went 4-4 with a double, RBI and a run scored. Freshmen Scotty Gutro had two hits and two RBI and Jackson Murphy had a double, RBI and run scored to pace the offense.

Sophomore Joe Brahimi struck on six and pitched 5.2 innings to earn the win on the mound.

singles with a sacrifice hit mixed in got them another as their starting pitcher cruised through the second and third innings.

Hanover put up three runs with two outs in the fourth inning to go up 6-0 on three straight singles to the shallow outfield.

In the bottom half of the inning, Sarah Ainsley showed off her bat for the Presidents, collecting her first of two hits on the day. She ripped a single over the head of Hanover's third baseman, putting a runner on base with two down in the inning. She also legged out an infield single with one out in the bottom of the seventh inning, hitting a slow roller to the third base side.

After a clean fifth inning, Hanover tacked on four more runs in the top of the sixth and three more after that in the seventh. They led off the fifth with a triple and then knocked in a run on an infield single. A single to shallow left field with one out in the inning put them up by eight. And with two outs in the inning, they collected three straight singles to put up two more runs. Tracey ended the inning by striking out the final batter looking.

A pair of doubles with no outs in the top of the seventh, one of which was hit off the left field wall, gave Hanover three more runs, putting them up by 13. After a walk, the Presidents recorded three straight outs to get out of the inning: one on a groundout to Tracey, another on a strikeout and the final one on a flyout to centerfield.

Although Ainsley had her second hit of the game in the bottom of the seventh, the Presidents were unable to get a rally going and the game ended one at-bat later.

With the tough weather conditions over the past few weeks, the Presidents days working outside have been limited. Even so, they have done what they can to keep putting in the work to get better on a daily basis.

"We do the best we can with going inside, but it just doesn't really replicate what we do out here," Sommers said. "We're trying to get the reps in the cages, be it inside or outside. Hopefully, we can break out the bats soon."

Regardless of where they are able to practice during the week, Sommers said the expectations remains the same for the Presidents.

"We're just trying to stay focused, keep battling and play good softball," he said. "We are a good team, our record doesn't show it, but we are competitive against good teams. As long as we keep our confidence up, we can move forward and scratch out some more wins."

Koch Proposes $325M FY20 Municipal Budget

"I think this budget reflects the values that we set as a city," the mayor said. "I know there are a number of departments in here and each of those departments have a special mission, but we all come together as one city and we collaborate and provide the best possible services to the residents of the city."

"I will say, without a doubt...I don't think any community provides the services that this city does across the board and I'm quite proud of that," he added.

Koch introduced the budget during Monday's City Council meeting. The spending plan was referred to the council's finance committee for review over the coming weeks. The council has the ability to make cuts from the proposed budget but cannot add to it.

The council will hold a public hearing on the proposed budget on Monday, May 13, at 6:30 p.m. in the Great Hall of the McIntyre Government Center, 1305 Hancock St. The first of three scheduled finance committee meetings will follow the public hearing. The other two finance committee meetings on the budget are slated for May 29 and June 5, both at 6:30 p.m.

As part of the budget, all city employees, excluding elected officials, would receive a 3 percent raise, Koch said.

Under the proposed budget, the general fund portion of the Quincy Public Schools budget would increase from $104.86 million in the current fiscal year, FY19, to $110.21 million for FY20, which begins July 1. The School Committee, not the City Council, is responsible for determining the school budget; the council sets the bottom line. The mayor, who chairs the school board, said the extra money would set aside funds for a "green" food service initiative, including the elimination of Styrofoam, and could also include money for afterschool enrichment programs.

Koch has proposed increasing the Quincy Police Department's budget from $28.97 million to $30.93 million. The two new officers he has proposed adding would give the department a total of 163 patrol officers. The budget also sets aside $950,000 for overtime, up from $833,000,

The Quincy Fire Department's budget would increase from $25.17 million to $26.82 million. The added money would boost the overtime budget from $2.16 million to $2.26 million, and the line item for shift differential from $3.13 million to $3.37 million.

The Emergency Management Department's budget would increase from $150,000 to $241,000. The increase would allow the city to study potential new shelters that could be used in emergencies instead of school buildings.

"I think we have to get out of the schools because you can't open the schools when you have people staying in the schools," Koch said. "We're looking at a different approach and we'll have more on that down the road."

The Department of Natural Resources – formed earlier this year from the merger of the Parks and Recreation Departments – would see its parks and forestry division budget increase from $2.65 million to $2.96 million. That includes the hiring of the earth scientist and tree warden, each at a $91,000 salary. New money in the budget for the recreation division, Koch said, would allow for the expansion of afterschool programs as well.

The city's spending on health insurance would increase from $47.08 million in the current fiscal year to $49.06 million. The city's contribution to the pension system would increase from $28.02 million to $29.76 million.

The line items for debt service payments would decrease from $16.38 million to $15.1 million. The line item for short-term debt, which is a separate part of the general fund budget, would increase from $2.87 million to $3.61 million.

As part of his spending plan, Koch has proposed creating a tourism office within his administration. The department's $175,000 budget would be funded through hotel tax receipts, 15 percent of which must go towards tourism. In prior years, hotel tax money had been directed to the Quincy Chamber of Commerce for its tourism initiatives.

The mayor anticipates 75 percent of city's revenue in fiscal year 2020 would come from property taxes. State aid would make up 14 percent and local receipts – including excise and meals taxes, plus various fees – would comprise the remaining 11 percent.

Koch said the total levy, the amount of money the city can raise through taxes, is up 1.5 percent this year. The city has seen $18 million in new growth over the past three years, he said, and his budget conservatively anticipates at least another $5 million in new growth.

Quincy, Koch said, has $31 million in excess levy capacity, the amount of money the city is leaving is untaxed under limits set by Proposition 2.5. The statewide average excess levy capacity is $1.89 million, he said, while Boston's is $873,000, Braintree's is $1.62 million, and Weymouth's is less than $25,000.

Koch on Monday also filed plans to create a new budget for Quincy Center operations, which would be funded directly through the district improvement financing program for the downtown instead of the general fund. The new budget, Koch said, would allow the city to use new growth in Quincy Center to pay for maintenance and operation costs for city-owned assets in the area, including the Hancock-Adams Common and a new public parking garage that will open this fall off Revere Road.

The downtown budget includes three positions – a downtown coordinator with a $101,000 salary, a junior mechanical engineer with a $92,000 salary, and a handyman with a $68,000 salary. The downtown budget would also include $4.67 million for debt service, $250,000 for a reserve account, a $75,000 contractual line item, $50,000 for equipment purchases, $25,000 for celebrations/festivals, and $1.9 million for an interfund transfer.

The sewer and water enterprise budgets – which are funded by ratepayers and not the general fund – were also introduced on Monday. The sewer enterprise budget would increase from $25.83 million to $26.07 million while the water enterprise budget would decrease from $19.21 million to $18.92 million. Koch said he does not anticipate an increase in water and sewer rates in the new fiscal year.

Koch on Monday also introduced a $10.3 million capital bond. The mayor said the money would allow the city to purchase 10 new police cruisers, a street sweeper and other vehicles. The bond would also allow the Quincy Fire Department to purchase new breathing apparatus for firefighters and would set aside funds for various building, technology and traffic improvements.

Andronico Seeks Public Input For QPS Budget

By ANTHONY ANDRONICO
Quincy School Committee Member

It's officially budget season. On Monday night, Mayor Koch unveiled his Fiscal Year 2020 Budget proposal to the city council and with it gave his bottom-line number for Quincy Public Schools (QPS) to work with. This year, it is proposed that the QPS budget be increased by 5% to $110,209,569 – accounting for a total of 34% of the entire budget.

This increase in funding will allow my School Committee colleagues and me to maintain small class sizes, provide teachers with the tools they need to be successful, and expand existing programs. In the weeks ahead, we have five public meetings scheduled to discuss the budget; the first on May 13, and the final meeting; at which we will approve a budget, on June 12. It is important to me that the budget reflect the values of our community, so I wanted to take a moment to ask you about your priorities and ideas for QPS.

Thus far, the school committee has received budget requests to add a high-level data analyst to the administrative staff, add a second choral director for the high schools, and increase the availability of professional development for our health teachers so that we can expand our health curriculum.

In addition to these requests, I would like to transition our lunch programs away from styrofoam trays and toward green alternatives, hire more paraprofessionals so that our sharply increasing special education population receives the education they are entitled to, and continue to increase the resources available to our career and technical education programs at both high schools.

In last year's budget, the school committee added an English Language Learner teacher, an Occupational Education teacher, three full-time and one part-time special education teachers, and three digital literacy teachers. We also increased the daily stipend for substitute teachers so that we could become more competitive in the region and ensure that our substitutes are of the highest quality.

Our focus last year reflected the value that we place on small class sizes and retaining top-tier educators – I expect this trend to continue this year.

I am proud to represent you every day on the School Committee and I believe that if we work together we can make Quincy a better place to raise a family. If you have a budget idea or priority that you would like to share, please reach out to me via email at anthonyandronico@quincypublicschools.com or on social media at www.Facebook.com/AJAndronico.

Hancock St.; 1550 Hancock St.; 1562 Hancock St.; 1570 Hancock St.; 1620 Hancock St.; and 95 Parkingway.

The buildings on all those properties, except for 1355-1363 Hancock St. and 1415 Hancock St., would be demolished and could be targeted for future development efforts. The other two would instead be rehabilitated because of their historic nature.

Approval of the URDP amendment sets the stage for acquiring those properties, but separate council votes would be required before any land takings happen. Jim Fatseas, Quincy's planning director, previously told councillors the administration was "not in a hurry to take anybody's property" and would rather the landowners take action to improve their parcels.

One other property – 119 Parkingway, which is home to IHOP – had been identified for potential taking when the amended URDP was first unveiled. William Geary, the special counsel to Koch for the revitalization of Quincy Center, said the property would be removed from the list because the site might be incorporated into a planned new public parking garage that would be constructed nearby.

"In removing that property, it is stricken from that list and the council need not consider it until such time as the administration has completed those deliberations and determines whether or not it is suitable for placement on a future list or it's suitable under the rubric that it is a necessary public improvement," Geary said.

A $61 million bond pending before the council includes $15.26 million to acquire 100 Parkingway and design a new garage located partially on that parcel; Koch has said he hopes to use state or federal funds to pay for construction of the garage. The council's finance committee will hold a second meeting to review the bond on June 12.

The amendment to the URDP approved Monday night does not expand its boundaries. Rob Stevens, the deputy planning director, said it could be expanded in the future.

"We've had a conversation about expanding the boundary," he said. "We've had redevelopment down the McGrath Highway corridor. We've had conversations down over on School Street and that area. We've always, even from the beginning, saw the Star Market site with that huge parking lot as ripe for development."

City Council President Brad Croall said residents who have spoken to him have been amazed by progress in Quincy Center, but also concerned about the condition of some of the properties listed for potential taking.

"I see the value of the administration in this case engaging with some of the property owners and trying to take those...properties to the next level," Croall said. "That's all that's being contemplated here tonight. Allowing the city of Quincy... through the administration to engage in a conversation to try to improve some of these properties listed here."

Councillor Noel DiBona welcomed the amendment. In particular, he was happy to see 1620 Hancock St. listed for potential taking. That building was home to a pizza shop but has been boarded up and vacant since a 1997 fire.

"This is a step in the right direction. I feel it is very vital for the downtown," DiBona said. "I'm in support of this."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci asked Geary and City Solicitor Jim Timmins if the City Council had the ability to make changes to the pending URDP amendment or the land disposition agreement proposed between the city and FoxRock for a portion of the Ross Lot.

Geary said councillors could recommend changes to those two items, which the administration would review, but likely could not vote to amend either document.

"The body can make recommendations for improvements and it is incumbent on the administration to value those recommendations and take them into account and adopt them to the extent that they make sense," he said.

Timmins said he was "inclined to say no," to Palmucci's question, but would have to look further into the matter.

WWII Hero, Marine PFC William Caddy Remembered

friends to honor the fighting men from Quincy who fought in one of the Marine Corps epic battles of World War II," said Master Sergeant William Topham of the Leatherneck Honors Society of Massachusetts.

Topham read an account of Caddy's ultimate sacrifice on March 3, 1945, a day of "incredible violence and unbelievable heroism" on the Japanese island of Iwo Jima.

Caddy was leading his Marine unit that took cover in a shell hole after coming under fire while advancing against Japanese forces. They were pinned down for more than three hours, enduring a constant barrage of bullets and grenades.

"PFC Caddy was slouched with two other Marines in a shell hole near base of a hill with his back against one of the sandy sides of the crater, gasping for breath and shaking from a combination of fear and exhaustion and wondering what would happen next," said Topham. "Small arms fire snorted overhead as grenades exploded yards away in no man's land."

As one Marine made his way to the lip of the hole to get a view of a sniper's nest, a grenade came flying through the air and landed directly into the hole.

"Only PFC Caddy saw the grenade," said Topham. "Without a word, he lunged on top of the missive missile and took the full blast in his chest and stomach. He smothered the explosion with his body, protecting his comrades from serious injury."

For his heroic action, President Harry Truman awarded Caddy the Medal of Honor posthumously. It read in part that "among the men who fought on Iwo Jima, uncommon valor was a common virtue."

Topham said Caddy was a well-regarded squad leader, an expert rifleman, with a strong sense of discipline and "above all a complete dedication to his comrades, a devotion that claimed him life and earned him the Medal of Honor."

Added Topham, "It's amazing what one young Marine can do, one young man gave up his life defending his brothers."

He noted that although Iwo Jima was the scene of one of the most brutal battles in this country's history with more than 6,000 American soldiers killed, it also had some of the most heroic feats with 27 Medal of Honor recipients.

The island, located about 750 miles off the coast of Japan, had three airfields that American military leaders believed could serve as a staging area for US warplanes to raid the Japanese mainland. Iwo Jima had been invaded by American forces just a few weeks before the day Caddy died.

Former Union Congregational Church pastor, Rev. John Swanson, now pastor of First Church of Christ in Lynn, referred to the Easter season and Caddy's young age of 19 when he saved his fellow Marines.

"Behind Semper Fi, the flag, and the anthem, you need to remember PFC Caddy was a kid," said Swanson. "Think about it. He probably liked chocolate (Easter) bunnies more than girls two years before he put on the uniform of the (Marine) corps...the forever young were young."

Mayor Thomas Koch noted Caddy was a graduate of North Quincy High School and "walked the halls of that school."

"A man is not dead if he's remembered," said Koch. "This park is named in his honor and his family remembers him and through his comrades of the Caddy post, he is remembered, and will always be remembered by this community."

The mayor noted in North Quincy high's atrium is a memorial honoring all North Quincy high graduates who served in conflicts.

In addition to Caddy, there are four other servicemen who have individual honors: Army Air Force Gen. Charles Sweeney who was involved in dropping both atomic bombs on Japan during WWII, including piloting the plane that attacked Nagasaki; Navy aviator Capt. Dick Stratton, Vietnam War POW; Medal of Honor recipient Marine Major Everett Pope, honored for leading a WWII assault against Japanese suicide attacks in Peleliu; and Airman Alan Brudno, who was held prisoner for 7 ½ years in Vietnam, the longest of any US serviceman in history.

Koch gave a nod to WWII veteran Rosario Santoro and Korean War Marine veteran Joseph Dunford Sr. who were in attendance. Dunford is the father of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Joseph Dunford.

William Caddy Detachment Marine Corps League Commander Dan Dewey escorted Caddy's niece, Sherri Holleran, in placing a wreath at the memorial. Taps were played by American Legion member Robert LaFleur.

"The Singing Trooper," Dan Clark, performed a rousing rendition of "The National Anthem" and "Amazing Grace." His wife, Mary Colarusso, sang "God Bless America" to close the ceremony.

MARY COLARUSSO sings "God Bless America" as the Quincy Police color guard stands at attention.

VETERANS SALUTE the memory of Marine PFC William Caddy during a ceremony at Caddy Park.

COLOR GUARDS HONOR the memory of Marine PFC William Caddy during a ceremony April 28 at Caddy Park.

Quincy Sun photos/Tom Gorman

Marc Connolly of the Caddy Detachment Marine Corps League noted the passing last November of its past commander and WWII Marine veteran Leo Cardarelli who "was the driving force of the Caddy detachment."

Connolly also paid tribute to three other Quincy men who died fighting at Iwo Jima, Pvt. Malcolm McPherson, Pvt. John Jackson, and Pvt. John Koski.

"Uncommon valor on Iwo Jima became the legacy of our corps," Connolly said. "Their devotion to duty and self-sacrifice helped secure the Battle of Iwo Jima."

OBITUARIES

Patricia A. Bullock, 78

PATRICIA A. BULLOCK

Funeral services for Patricia A. (Perfetuo) Bullock, age 78, of Braintree, will be held Thursday at 10 a.m. in Fort. Square Presbyterian Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Bullock died peacefully May 3 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born, raised and educated in Quincy. She graduated from Quincy High School, Class of 1958. Mrs. Bullock lived in Braintree for fifty years, previously living in Quincy.

She was a devoted homemaker and was dedicated to her family.

Mrs. Bullock was a member of the Fort Square Presbyterian Church in Quincy. Pat loved to cook and enjoyed sewing all types of things. She was also involved with The Mailbox Club ministry where she corresponded with children from all over the world telling them about the love of Jesus.

Beloved wife of the late Randall Stone Bullock. Devoted mother of Robert J. Bullock and his wife Phyllis of Oklahoma and Katherine H. Bullock and her partner Donald Houle of Braintree. Loving grandmother of Kristi Bullock, Alyssa Williams, Joshua Bullock, Donald Houle, Jr., Robert Houle and Jonathan Houle. Daughter of the late James J. and Katherine A. (DiVola) Perfetuo. Dear sister of F. James Perfetuo and his wife Barbara of Marshfield Hills. She is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

The Rev. John W. Culp, Pastor, will officiate.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Visiting hours have been omitted.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Joan K. Panarelli, 82

JOAN K. PANARELLI

Visiting hours for Joan Kelsey (Mina) Panarelli, age 82, were held Wednesday from 4 to 8 p.m. in McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, South Weymouth.

Mrs. Panarelli died May 2 Hancock Park in Quincy after a long decline in health.

She was born in Boston to the late Anthony and Edna (Campbell) Mina. She is survived by her daughter Denise and her husband Michael, her son Richard and his partner Patricia of Whitman, her daughter Bonnie and her partner Kent of Vermont, her son Peter Panarelli and his wife Jennifer of Bolton. She has 11 beautiful grandchildren.

Mrs. Panarelli was raised in Quincy and later moved to Weymouth. During her teen years, she was a dance instructor at Fred Astaire dance studio in Quincy and continued her love of dancing at Mosely's in Dedham. Her baked goods were always requested at all family functions. She was a skilled baker and a fabulous cook.

In 1976, Mrs. Panarelli attended Massachusetts School of Barbering and was one of the first female barbers on the South Shore. She opened her barbershop, Shear Devotion, in Scituate with her daughter Denise in 1977 where she continued to make an impression on all who met her with her quick wit and fun personality. She worked in Scituate for over 30 years.

Mrs. Panarelli was also a founding member 9 years ago for the Cancer Cruisaders Coffee Hour, a supportive group for those who have or had cancer or lost someone to cancer.

She is also survived by her sister and brother in law, Sandra and Robert Mitchell of Braintree and her brother and sister in law Robert and Susan Mina of Hingham and sister in law Helen Mina of Houghs Neck. She is predeceased by her brother, Anthony Mina of Houghs Neck. She has several nieces and nephews.

Marijuana Ordinance Still Pending

By SCOTT JACKSON

A zoning ordinance regulating where recreational marijuana shops could open in Quincy remains pending before the City Council.

Mayor Thomas Koch introduced the ordinance in February 2018. The council's ordinance committee met Monday to review the ordinance but did not vote on it. Councillor Nina Liang, the committee's chairwoman, said she wanted to give her colleagues more time to review the ordinance before casting a final vote.

"I want to make sure we have time to digest the new information that's in front of us this evening," she said.

Massachusetts voters approved the legalization of recreational marijuana in a November 2016 referendum. Statewide, 53.6 percent of voters backed the measure, and 51 percent of voters in Quincy did so as well. Because a majority of Quincy voters approved the 2016 referendum, the mayor and City Council cannot ban marijuana establishments outright. The city would also be required to license up to seven pot shops – one for every five liquor stores in the city.

The proposed ordinance would prohibit marijuana establishments from opening within 1,500 feet of any residential zoning district. They would also be barred from opening within 500 feet of any school, playground, athletic field, beach, public park, library, skating rink, public transit center, day care facility, or youth sports facility. Those regulations would essentially limit recreational pot shops to the Fore River Shipyard, the vicinity of Ricciuti Drive or Crown Colony, unless an applicant obtained a variance to open elsewhere.

The establishments would be allowed to open between 11 a.m. and 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

The proposed ordinance would require anyone looking to open a marijuana establishment to obtain a special permit from the Zoning Board of Appeals. A community meeting would be required prior to the application being filed. Applicants would also need to sign a host agreement with the mayor; those host agreements would include a community impact fee of up to 3 percent of gross sales payable to the city for up to five years.

Koch has filed separate legislation, pending before the council, to establish a 3 percent local sales tax. That would be on top of the state's 6.25 percent sales tax and a 10.75 percent state excise tax.

Stephen Durkin, an assistant city solicitor, said state law gives communities the ability to put certain safeguards in place, provided they are not too burdensome.

"Local communities do have some input into what goes in in their city town. Local communities…are allowed to impose reasonable safeguards, reasonable restrictions, including specifically time, place and manner," Durkin said.

"Those safeguards have to be such that they are not unreasonably impracticable for a businessperson to want to do business under those rules."

State law, he added, requires marijuana establishments be 500 feet away from schools. Durkin said the state would allow a community to shrink that buffer zone but not expand it.

Durkin recommended three amendments to the pending ordinance.

As part of the ordinance, the council would also be responsible for setting the fee paid by an applicant looking to open a marijuana establishment. Durkin said that fee should be "fairly nominal."

Seaside Social Club Salsa Night

The Seaside Social Club will host a Salsa Night on Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Fellowship Hall of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave.

Cooking or dancing? The answer is both. Come and learn to make several types of salsa and take home a sample. Then, get those hips moving with some simple Salsa steps. Have a fun night of dips and dance.

Refreshments served by Sue Rheault and Gayle Mackay. Everyone is invited to this free program.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Untangling personal problems might take more time than the impatient Lamb expected. But it's important to hang in there until all those knotty situations are straightened out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You still need to work out last-minute snags in your dealings with a rival. Hold your ground despite a perceived lack of support. Things should turn around before you know it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Best not to delay preparing for that upcoming family event. The sooner you get things started, the better chance you have of finding potential problems and making needed changes.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The romantic Moon Child might be reluctant to see the reality behind that "ideal" situation. But by midweek, the practical Crab emerges to help clear away the moonbeams.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Although the Big Cat might be receptive to more "purr-suasion" to get you to agree to a workplace change, make sure you can distinguish the fine line between facts and flattery.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your positive attitude in the workplace helps to get you noticed by the right people. Now go ahead and use some of that new self-confidence to help shore up a personal relationship.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Although you might still have to work out some problems with a business partner, things go more smoothly on the home front. An investment opportunity might need more study.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Don't be reluctant to act on your suspicion. Even if others see nothing wrong, the astute Scorpio could sense an underlying problem that isn't always obvious on the surface.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A new opportunity presents some obstacles that need to be dealt with as soon as possible. Delaying action in hopes that the problems will go away could be counterproductive.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A friend or family member's request might carry some hidden factors that could later create problems. Be sure you know all the facts before you make your decision.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A setback in implementing a plan could turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Use the downtime to rework your original concepts and see where changes could be made.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might not be consciously fishing for compliments, but admit it -- won't you feel great when your efforts are noticed? So accept the praise gracefully. You earned it.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your love of beauty in your personal life extends to your efforts to protect and preserve the natural world around you.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Mark Wahlberg (47 years old) will play Steve Austin, a role made famous by Lee Majors (at 34) in the 1974-78 series "The Six Million Dollar Man." However, due to costs today, it's now called "The Six Billion Dollar Man." Travis Knight, who hit big with the "Transformers" spinoff "Bumblebee" (which grossed $466 million) is directing. Lee Majors was last seen in "Ash vs Evil Dead" (2016) and on an episode of "Fuller House" (2017).

But before that, Wahlberg will star in and produce two films: the Netflix crime drama "Wonderland," with Winston Duke and Alan Arkin, and "Good Joe Bell," with Gary Sinise and "Nashville's" Connie Britto. It's based on the real-life story of an Oregon father who walks across the United States with his son Jadin (Reid Miller, best known for "Training Day" in 2017).

Jennifer Lawrence, out of her self-imposed vacation from films, has chosen an untitled bio-pic being helmed by acclaimed Broadway director Lila Neugebauer. It starts shooting in New Orleans in mid-June.

Freddie Highmore -- who started acting at age 12 in "Finding Neverland" (2004) and "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" (2005) -- will use his downtime from the ABC series "The Good Doctor" to star in the big-screen bank heist film "Way Down," with Spanish film star Astrid Berges-Frisbey, who was the mermaid Syrena in "The Pirates of the Caribbean: On Stranger Tides."

Director Spike Lee, who won the Grand Prix at the Cannes Film Festival and was nominated for a best adapted screenplay at this year's Oscars for "BlacKkKlansman," hasn't chosen his next directing project, but will executive produce "Son of the South," starring current "MacGyver" Lucas Till, Brian Dennehy and "Pretty Little Liars" Lucy Hale. Now filming in Alabama, it tells the story of the civil-rights movement in 1961.

Jake Gyllenhaal, who hit it off with Tom Holland when they acted together in "Spider-Man: Far From Home" (due July 5), has hired Holland in his capacity as producer (with others) for Netflix's "The Devil All the Time," co-starring with Sebastian Stan, Bill Skarsgard and Robert Pattinson.

Nicole Kidman, filming the second season of HBO's "Big Little Lies," is in great demand, thanks to the $1.1 billion-grossing "Aquaman." She's completed "The Goldfinch," with Ansel Elgort (who will be Tony in Steven Spielberg's reboot of "West Side Story") and Sarah Paulson (out Sept. 13). Next up is "Fair and Balanced," about Fox News' Roger Ailes scandal, with John Lithgow as Ailes, Charlize Theron, Margot Robbie, Allison Janney, Kate McKinnon and Malcolm McDowell (due Dec. 20), followed by director David E. Kelley's HBO mini-series "The Undoing," with Hugh Grant and Donald Sutherland.

Kidman traded in Tom Cruise for Keith Urban, picked up an Oscar and never stops working ... and that's no big or little lie!

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Mermaid Lawn Sprinkler --- Lawn sprinklers could not be used before the first water distribution systems were invented in the 1870s. The new ways to provide water through underground pipes were used by public buildings, then private water tanks, Farms, public landscapes and public parks were the next to install the systems. So by the 1880s, there was a way to use a sprinkler. At first, a plain metal piece with holes was screwed on a hose. Water sprinkled out of the holes. But by the 1890s, some clever companies started making decorative figural iron sprinklers to be used in a private yard. There were sprinklers shaped like monkeys, frogs, ducks, alligators, turtles, a two-faced man and even a mermaid.

At a recent auction, a two-sided mermaid sprinkler sold for $2,040. Some experts say only about 18 different characters were used as iron sprinkler figures, although at least six companies made them. Most unusual probably is the 30-inch high cowboy who spins a lasso flinging water on the grass. It is thought that less than 100 were made. If iron sprinklers are too pricey to collect, look for the colorful Bakelite examples that are not figural made the 1940s and '50s. They often are found at garage sales.

Q: What kind of dishes would my ancestors have used? Pewter? Wood? Porcelain?

A: Dishes used for dinner were made of wood before the 16th century. Then thick ceramics like stoneware was used. It was easier to clean. The Chinese were making thin porcelain dishes from the 1st century to the 21st century, and thick pewter plates and pottery dishes were popular in the United States by the 1700s. It also was possible for the rich to order Chinese export porcelain that was delivered by ship in about a year. By the 19th century, all these wares were being made in Europe, China and the United States.

In 1945, plastic dishes were sold in a few department stores, although they had been tested by the armed forces since 1940. By 1948 plastic dishes were often considered the "best" dishes and were used for company. At least 20 companies were making plastic dinnerware. Best were the sets made of Beetle or Melamine plastic by companies like Brookpark or Boontonware. Cheap copies were made, popularity went down, and by the 1960s, plastic dishes were suitable for picnics -- not major entertaining.

Strange BUT TRUE

* The most exciting phrase to hear in science, the one that heralds new discoveries, is not 'Eureka!' but 'That's funny ...'." -- Isaac Asimov

* If you're planning a summer vacation in Maine this year, you might want to keep in mind that in that state, it's against the law to tickle a woman under the chin with a feather duster.

* You might be surprised to learn that drinking tea increased the life expectancy of the British -- and even more surprised to learn why. It wasn't any beneficial compound found in the tea itself; rather, it was the act of boiling the water, which had the effect of killing pathogens found in the untreated water that was largely in use in England at that time. Also, once the Brits started drinking tea, they became addicted to the caffeine and therefore drank quite a bit more boiled water than had been their wont, decreasing even further their exposure to the pathogens that caused illness.

* You've doubtless heard of paranoia, but you're likely not familiar with metanoia. "A profound transformation in one's outlook" isn't terribly common considering today's deep societal divisions.

* Food for thought: What could you do with an extra $1,500? According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, for every person in an American home, almost 300 pounds of food is thrown out each year. For a family of four, this amounts to about $1,500 in waste annually.

* Researchers in Greece who recently completed a study on napping found that men who nap at least three times a week were at a 37 percent lower risk for heart-related death. So now you have an excuse to do what you want to do anyway.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "If you have a flannel-backed vinyl tablecloth that gets a tear, don't throw it out. You can cut it into rectangles to line a shelf. Use a thin bead of glue at the edges to keep them down, and it makes a nice liner. You can even use squares between pans as a scuff guard." -- T.A. in Ohio

* Washcloths with tags on them can be hung from an "S" hook on a towel bar. You can fit several, and they'll still dry as long as you hang them from the tag.

* Sewing machine tip from C.K. in Texas: "After you oil your machine, use a folded over paper towel to put a few stitches through. It will absorb any excess oil that is on the machine's surface or needle."

* Use a used fabric softener sheet to collect cat hair from areas where Kitty likes to nap -- the back of the couch, fabric-covered chairs, etc. This also works on curtains that are regularly rubbed up against. Make sure you use a sheet that has already gone through the laundry.

* "Idea for an old, unpaired sock: Insert a tennis ball and tie closed, then give to a dog as a toy." -- R. in Oregon. (Here's another: Fill with clean, uncooked white rice and knot closed. Heat in the microwave for a hot pack to use on aching muscles.)

* Use an old toothbrush to clean out your combs or small brushes. Spray the comb with alcohol and then use the toothbrush to scrub it clean.

Stickelers Answer

The answer is C) 33 dogs.
If one bag of dog food feeds 8 puppies, then 8 bags would feed 64 puppies. We need to feed 20 puppies only, leaving 64-20 or 44 puppies that have to be "converted" into dogs. Since puppies are in a 4 to 3 ratio to dogs (8/6 = 4/3), then 4 is to 3 as 44 is to ?. The answer is 33.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days, and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. Holy Spirit and Miracle Prayer. Thank You. K.M.D. 5/9

★ ★ Volunteers Decorate Flags For Veterans Island ★ ★

SEVERAL DOZEN VOLUNTEERS banded together last Saturday to decorate Flags for Veterans Island with 400 American flags. The flags represent those who were killed in action, veterans who have passed away and servicemen and servicewomen still active in the U.S. armed forces. Volunteers included North Quincy High School students who are part of the Air Force Junior ROTC program, Boy Scouts and leaders, local residents and members of the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post. The Squadron maintains the island. The Sons of the American Legion will host its annual Memorial Day Observance Sunday, May 19 at 1 p.m. at the island, located at Fort Square, School and Pleasant Streets, Quincy. The public is welcome to attend the ceremony.

Happy Mother's Day

The Most Important Person on Earth

THE most important person on earth is a mother. She cannot claim the honor of having built Notre Dame Cathedral. She need not. She has built something more magnificent than any cathedral—a dwelling for an immortal soul, the tiny perfection of her baby's body.

The angels have not been blessed with such a grace. They cannot share in God's creative miracle to bring new saints to Heaven. Only a human mother can. Mothers are closer to God the Creator than any other creatures. God joins forces with mothers in performing this act of creation...

What on God's good earth is more glorious than this: to be a mother?

-Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty
